CLOSING SCENES OF CONGRESS.

General Butler's Reply to Senator Davis.

Savage Attack Upon Butler by Beck, of Kentucky.

Proclamation by the President Convening an Extra Session of the Senate.

The Ku Klux Bill Signed by the President.

Departure of General Grant for the West.

WASHINGTON, April 20, 1871.

Concluding Scenes in the House—Ben Butler's Reply to Senator Davis—Farnsworth, of Illinois, Takes a Hand in the Quarrel—Merciless Onslaught Upon Butler by Beck, of Kentucky.

The closing hours of the House to-day witnessed one of those scenes which, in the olden time, happened at rare intervals, but since the advent of Ben Butler have been of frequent occurrence. Some weeks ago there was a personal difficulty between General Butler and Garrett Davis in the Senate, the particulars of which were reported in the HERALD at the time. Subsequently Senator Davis, in the course of a personal explanation in the Senate, spoke of Butler in terms more forcible than either elegant or parliamentary, denouncing him as a "damned scoundrel" and a "cowardly blackguard." Ever since Davis delivered this speech Butler has been anxious to reply. In order to keep within the bounds of parliamentary decorum Butler departed from his usual custom and went to the trouble of writing his speech. Early this week he rose in his place in the House to a personal explanation, intending to deliver his reply to the "garrulous Garrett," but the Kentucky delegation, learning of Butler's intention, determined to object to his making his personal explanation. As soon as the time for adjournment sine die had been agreed upon Butler took advantage of the rule of the House which provides that within ten days of the adjournment the rules may be suspended, and accordingly he moved to suspend the rules to-day so as to make his explanation. With a mingled feeling of generosity and curiosity the democrats, with the exception of the Kentucky members, voted with the republicans to suspend the rules. This was within an hour and a half of the adjournment. It was generally known not only that Butler proposed to make such an explanation, but the character of the explanation itself was well understood.

When Butler arose in his place there was an involuntary congregation of the members on both sides of the House around him. The Kentucky delegation, headed by that awkward but able Scotchman, Mr. Beck, seemed determined to get close to the bold Ben Butler. Farnsworth, of Illinois, who, it was understood, would be alluded to in Butler's speech, was also in the foreground. The people in the galleries who had come to witness the dissolution of the first session of the Forty-second Congress made a rush for the front seats, as if intent upon hearing all that Butler had to say. Garrett Davis was not present, probably because he did not expect that the Kentucky objection to the explanation could be overcome. Butler read his speech, but he was so familiar with it that he frequently abandoned his manuscript and spoke with a force that gave effect to what he had to say. There was nothing very severe in his remarks about Davis, except the denials of that Senator's allegations. When he came down to Farnsworth that gentleman pricked up his ears and listened intently to every word. It was evident that he intended to reply, though he took no notes. When Butler had concluded, after some little delay, Farnsworth obtained the floor. Farnsworth is an old member of the House, familiar with all the rules of debate. He knows how to be severe and at the same time to keep within the bounds of parliamentary decorum. His tall, angular figure, his long, flaring beard, and a certain sardonic expression, together with his cool manner, lent additional force to what he said. His remarks were confined principally to a review of the testimony taken by the Military Committee in the investigation of Butler's management of the National Soldiers' Asylum. It was very evident that Butler felt the force of Farnsworth's remarks; for the Massachusetts member arose several times to make points of order upon his antagonist. His principal point was that the member from Illinois was abusing the privileges of the House in making a personal assault upon him. The Speaker ruled that this was not a specific point of order, but when Farnsworth charged Butler with gorging himself with the public money and Butler rose a second time to a point of order the Speaker ruled that such language was not parliamentary. But the House, by an almost unanimous vote, allowed Farnsworth to proceed.

Of course Butler obtained a few minutes for reply. He endeavored to defend himself against the charges of Farnsworth, but it was evident that he made little impression upon the House.

Then Beck, of Kentucky, claimed a few minutes to reply to Butler's attack upon Garret Davis. This was in some respects more severe than Farnsworth's reply. Beck gave Butler to understand that, notwithstanding the age of the Senator from Kentucky, the member from Massachusetts could have whatever satisfaction he desired, there or elsewhere. He also stated that in the Reconstruction Committee room he had seen Farnsworth shake his fist close under Butler's nose on several occasions, in the presence of ten or a dozen members of the House, in such a manner as no white man should take from another.

At this point Butler arose and protested that Farnsworth was not a white man. Whereupon Beck gave it as his opinion that Farnsworth would pass for a white man in the State of Kentucky. This created a laugh at Butler's expense.

The debate continued until the hour of adjournment, and the House may be said to have broken up in a row.

Proclamation by the President Convening an Extra Session of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 20, 1871.

By the President of the United States of America.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas objects of interest to the United States require that the Senate should be convened at twelve o'clock on Wednesday, the 10th day of May next, to receive and act upon such communications as may be made to it on the part of the Executive,

Now, therefore, I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, have considered it to be my duty to issue this my proclamation, declaring that an extraordinary occasion requires the Senate of the United States to convene for the transaction of business at the Capitol, in the city of Washington, on Wednesday, the 10th day of May next, at twelve o'clock on that day, of which all who shall at that time be entitled to act as members of that body are hereby required to take notice.

Given under my hand and the seal of the United States, at Washington, the twentieth of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one, and of the independence of the United States of America the ninety-fifth.

U. S. GRANT.

By the President.

HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.

Bills Signed by the President.

The President to-day signed and approved the following acts:—

An act authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to convey the United States Branch Mint at Dahlonega, Ga., to the trustees of the North Georgia Agricultural College for educational purposes; an act to enable the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company to mortgage its road; an act to enable the Houghton and Ontanagon Railroad Company to make a survey of its road; an act for the relief of Nicholas P. Trist; for the negotiation of the Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo; an act amending the thirty-second section of the Internal Revenue act of July, 1870, so as to provide that in cases of a difference in the width of gauges of connecting railroads the goods may be immediately transferred from one car to another under the personal supervision of an inspector, and under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; an act to enable the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston Railroad Company to relocate a portion of its road; an act for the restoration of Commander George A. Stevens, of the United States Navy, from the retired to the active list; an act to create a port of delivery at Potomac, Va., and for other purposes; an act to authorize the payment of duplicate checks of disbursing officers.

Congress at this session passed about forty bills of a public and private character.

The Ku Klux Bill Signed by the President.

President Grant, accompanied by Secretary Robeson and General Porter, came to the President's room at the Capitol at noon to-day. The Ku Klux bill was presented to him at one o'clock, when he signed it. The bill is now, therefore, a law. The Deficiency bill was also signed by him.

Nominations Not Acted Upon.

About eighteen Executive nominations failed of action by the adjournment of the Senate to-day, among them Joseph Nimmo, Jr., to be Inspector General of Steamboats; Henry M. Moorhouse, Assessor of Eleventh district of New York, and a number of nominations for the Engineer and Marine Corps.

Departure of the President for the West.

The President, accompanied by Senator Morton and General Porter, left Washington for the West on the forty minutes past five o'clock afternoon train, in a splendid car. The President will be absent one week.

Republicans Organizing for the Campaign of 1872.

The presidents of the several republican State associations in this city have determined to organize a separate association, to consist of the president of each State association, and one delegate to be elected by the associations.

Holders of Pardons Without Standing in Federal Courts.

The conference committee on the Deficiency Appropriation bill struck out the House amendment in regard to the effect in United States Courts of pardons granted by President Lincoln under the amnesty proclamation of December, 1863. The law which debars the holders of such pardons of standing in the courts therefore still remain on the statute book.

Interesting Cases Before the Supreme Court.

The case of Klein against the United States and one other case from the Court of Claims, now argued before the Supreme Court, presents for decision the question of the constitutionality of the proviso relating to amnesty and pardon in the Appropriation act of July, 1870. That act provided that no pardon or amnesty granted by the President should be considered by the courts in deciding upon any claim against the United States.

Settlement of Claims for Vessels Lost in the Service of the Government.

In the settlement of claims under the act of March 3, 1849, for vessels lost in the military service of the United States, Comptroller Brodhead decided that the government was subrogated to the rights of the owners in respect of insurance, and that consequently only the value of the lost vessel, less the amount of the insurance, would be paid. The underwriters, on the contrary, claimed that, having paid the insurance, they were subrogated to the rights of the owners, and had, therefore, a legal claim for reimbursement from the United States. The Comptroller stated that the party which received the premium ought to stand the risk, and that it would be a novel and unsound principle of law which would give an insurance company the premium and impose the risk on the government. An opinion of a former Attorney General was invoked in favor of the claims of the insurers, but the Secretary of the Treasury sustained the Comptroller and declined payment.

Reports of Cabinet Changes.

[From the Boston Advertiser, April 20.]

The reports of Cabinet changes are again revived, and it is generally believed that one if not two of the present Ministers will retire as soon as some pending questions in which they have taken part are settled. The Secretary of State has often expressed a wish to be relieved from his duties, but has remained at the President's desire, which, so far as the public have any knowledge of it, is still unchanged. If Mr. Fish retire, and the President should select his successor from those who are now in public life, probably no name would inspire more general confidence or bring greater strength to the administration than that of Senator Frelinghuysen. Reports are also current once more of a change in the Treasury Department. "Removal," some of the despatches call it. The relations of the President with Mr. Boutwell, as indeed with the other members of the Cabinet, are believed to be the most cordial, and if any change occurs there it will undoubtedly be by Mr. Boutwell's express desire. He is, however, too deeply interested in the success of the financial measures he is now carrying out, and in which he has entire confidence, to make that supposition probable. There is more ground for inferring changes in the offices of the Postmaster General and the Attorney General; but here also there is nothing but inference, resting on outside efforts known to have been made from time to time to procure the removal of the present incumbents.

THE KU KLUX BILL.

An Efficient Measure for the Suppression of Southern Ku Kluxes.

The President Empowered to Use the Army and Navy for the Enforcement of the Laws in All the States—The Writ of Habeas Corpus to Be Suspended in Certain Cases—The Test Oath Required of Jurors in United States Courts.

AN ACT to enforce the provisions of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That any person who, under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation, custom or usage of any State, shall subject or cause to be subjected any person within the jurisdiction of the United States to the deprivation of any rights, privileges or immunities secured by the constitution of the United States, shall, any such law, statute, ordinance, regulation, custom or usage of the State to the contrary notwithstanding, be liable to the party injured in any action at law, suit in equity or other proper proceeding for redress; such proceeding to be prosecuted in the several District or Circuit courts of the United States, with and subject to the same rights of appeal, review upon error and other remedies provided in like cases in such courts under the provisions of the act of the 9th of April, 1866, entitled "An act to protect all persons in the United States in their civil rights, and to furnish the means of their vindication," and the other remedial laws of the United States which are in their nature applicable in such cases.

SECTION 2. That if two or more persons within any State or Territory of the United States shall conspire together to overthrow, or to put down, or to destroy by force the government of the United States, or to levy war against the United States, or to oppose by force the authority of the government of the United States, or by force, intimidation or threat to prevent, hinder or delay the execution of any law of the United States, or by force to seize, take or possess any property of the United States contrary to the authority thereof, or by force, intimidation or threat to prevent any person from accepting or holding any office, or trust, or place of confidence under the United States, or from discharging the duties thereof, or by force, intimidation or threat to induce any officer of the United States to leave any State, district or place where his duties as such officer might lawfully be performed, or to injure him in his person or property on account of his lawful discharge of the duties of his office, or to injure his person while engaged in the lawful discharge of the duties of his office, or to injure his property so as to molest, hinder, interfere with or impede him in the discharge of his official duty, or by force, intimidation or threat to deter any party or witness in any court of the United States from attending such court, or from testifying in any matter pending in such court, fully and truthfully, or to injure any such party or witness in his person or property on account of his having so attended or testified, or by force, intimidation or threat to influence the verdict, presentment or indictment of any juror or grand juror in any court of the United States, or to injure such juror in his person or property on account of any verdict, presentment or indictment lawfully assented to by him, or on account of his being or having been such juror, or shall conspire together or go in disguise upon the public highway or the premises of another for the purpose, either directly or indirectly, of depriving any person or any class of persons of the equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges or immunities under the laws, or for the purpose of preventing or hindering the constituted authorities of any State from giving or securing to all persons within such State the equal protection of the laws, or shall conspire together for the purpose of in any manner impeding, hindering, obstructing or defeating the due course of justice in any State or Territory, with intent to deny to any citizen of the United States the due and equal protection of the laws, or to injure any person in his person or his property for lawfully enforcing the right of any person or class of persons to the equal protection of the laws, or by force, intimidation or threat, to prevent any citizen of the United States lawfully entitled to vote from giving his support or advocacy in a lawful manner towards or in favor of the election of any lawfully qualified person as an elector of President or Vice President of the United States, or as a Member of the Congress of the United States, or to injure any such citizen in his person or property on account of such support or advocacy, each and every person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a high crime, and, upon conviction thereof in any District or Circuit Court of the United States, or District or Supreme Court of any Territory of the United States, having jurisdiction of similar offences shall be punished by a fine not less than $500 nor more than $5,000, or by imprisonment, with or without hard labor, as the court may determine, for a period of not less than six months nor more than six years, as the court may determine, or by both such fine and imprisonment, as the court shall determine. And if any one or more persons engaged in any such conspiracy shall do or cause to be done any act in furtherance of the object of such conspiracy, whereby any person shall be injured in his person or property, or deprived of having or exercising any right or privilege of a citizen of the United States, the person so injured or deprived of such rights and privileges may have and maintain an action for the recovery of damages occasioned by such injury or deprivation of rights and privileges against any one or more of the persons engaged in such conspiracy, such action to be prosecuted in the proper District or Circuit Court of the United States, with and subject to the same rights of appeal, review upon error and other remedies provided in such cases in such courts under the provisions of the act of April 9, 1866, entitled "An act to protect all persons in the United States in their civil rights, and to furnish the means of their vindication."

SEC. 3. That in all cases where insurrection, domestic violence, unlawful combinations or conspiracy in any State shall so obstruct or hinder the execution of the laws thereof and of the United States as to deprive any portion or class of the people of such State of any of the rights, privileges, or immunities, or protection named in the constitution and secured by this act, and the constituted authorities of such State shall either be unable to protect, or shall, from any cause, fail in or refuse protection of the people in such rights, such facts shall be deemed a denial by such State of the equal protection of the laws to which they are entitled under the constitution of the United States; and in all such cases, or whenever any such insurrection, violence, unlawful combination or conspiracy shall oppose or obstruct the laws of the United States, or the due execution thereof, or impede or obstruct the due course of justice under the same, it shall be lawful for the President, and it shall be his duty, to take such measures, by the employment of the militia or the land and naval forces of the United States, or of either, or by other means, as he may deem necessary for the suppression of such insurrection, domestic violence or combinations; and any person who shall be arrested under the provisions of this and the preceding section shall be delivered to the marshal of the proper district, to be dealt with according to law.

SEC. 4. That whenever in any State or part of a State the unlawful combinations named in the preceding section of this act shall be organized and armed and so numerous and powerful as to be able by violence to either overthrow or set at defiance the constituted authorities of such State, and of the United States within such State; or when the constituted authorities are in complicity with, or shall connive at, the unlawful purposes of such powerful and armed combinations; and whenever, by reason of either or all of the causes aforesaid, the conviction of such offenders and the preservation of the public safety shall become in such district impracticable, in every such case such combinations shall be deemed a rebellion against the government of the United States, and during the continuance of such rebellion and within the limits of the district which shall be so under the sway thereof, such limits to be prescribed by proclamation, it shall be lawful for the President of the United States, when in his judgment the public safety shall require it to suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, to the end that rebellion may be overthrown; provided, that all the provisions of the second section of an act entitled "an act relating to habeas corpus and regulating judicial proceedings in certain cases," approved March 3, 1863, which relate to the discharge of prisoners other than prisoners of war, and to the penalty for refusing to obey the order of the Court, shall be in full force so far as the same are applicable to the provisions of this section; provided further that the President shall first have made proclamation, as now provided by law, commanding such insurgents to disperse, and provided also that the provisions of this section shall not be in force after the end of the next regular session of Congress.

SEC. 5. That no person shall be a grand or petit juror in any court of the United States upon any inquiry, hearing or trial of any suit, proceeding or prosecution based upon or arising under the provisions of this act, who shall, in the judgment of the court, be in complicity with any such combination or conspiracy; and every such shall, before entering upon any such inquiry, hearing or trial, take and subscribe an oath in open court that he has never, directly or indirectly, counselled, advised or voluntarily aided any such combination or company; and each and every person who shall take this oath and shall therein swear falsely shall be guilty of perjury and shall be subject to the pains and penalties declared against that crime, and the first section of the act entitled "An act defining additional causes of challenge and prescribing an additional oath for grand and petit jurors in the United States courts," approved June 17, 1862, be and the same is hereby repealed.

SEC. 6. That any person or persons having knowledge that any of the wrongs conspired to be done, and mentioned in the second section of this act, are about to be committed, and having power to prevent or aid in preventing the same, shall neglect or refuse so to do, and such wrongful act shall be committed, such person or persons shall be liable to the person injured or his legal representatives for all damages caused by any such wrongful act, which first named person or persons by reasonable diligence could have prevented, and such damages may be recovered in an action on the case in the proper Circuit Court of the United States, and any number of persons guilty of such wrongful neglect or refusal may be joined as defendants in such action, provided that such action shall be commenced within one year after such cause of action shall have accrued; and if the death of any person shall be caused by any such wrongful act and neglect the legal representatives of such deceased person shall have such action therefor, and may recover not exceeding $5,000 damages therein for the benefit of the widow of such deceased person, if any there be, or if there be no widow, for the benefit of the next of kin of such deceased person.

SEC. 7. That nothing herein contained shall be construed to supersede or repeal any former act or law, except so far as the same may be repugnant thereto; and any offences heretofore committed against the tenor of any former act shall be prosecuted, and any proceeding already commenced for the prosecution thereof shall be continued and completed the same as if this act had not been passed, except so far as the provisions of this act may go to sustain and validate such proceeding.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA ELECTION.

THE FIRST TERRITORIAL ELECTION

General Chipman Elected Delegate to Congress—The Legislature Republican—Grand Republican Jubilee—Speech of Colonel Forney—The Administration Endorsed—Gen. Grant Renominated for the Presidency.

WASHINGTON, April 20, 1871.

The citizens of the District of Columbia held their first election to-day under the recent act of Congress giving them a new form of government, and for the first time voted for a delegate to represent them in Congress, and for members of the House of Delegates, the members of the Council, the upper board of the Legislative Assembly having already been appointed by the President. The election was remarkably peaceful throughout the District, but few incidents having occurred requiring the interposition of the police. In seven of the voting precincts a number of women approached the polls with tickets in their hands, claiming the right to vote. They were treated courteously by the Commissioners, but were informed their names were not on the registry list. They thereupon presented affidavits that they were legally qualified voters, and that they had presented themselves for registration and been refused. These affidavits were presented as preliminary to legal proceedings. In some cases the women were accompanied by lawyers. The republicans to-night are jubilant. Bonfires are blazing all over the city. At the Union Club House to-night, where many of the principal republicans were assembled, there was a serenade, when Colonel J. W. Forney was called for by the crowd and delivered a speech in response.

SPEECH OF COLONEL JOHN W. FORNEY.

MY FELLOW CITIZENS—To-day's event will go forth to the people of America as something more than a mere municipal triumph. It is the crystallization of the logic of the overthrow of the rebellion. It closes the period of republican dissension and opens the future of republican victory. It is death to the defeat that springs from personal quarrels and life to the spirit born of personal magnanimity. It saves the capital of the nation from periodical discussions about impossible removal to doubtful localities. (Applause.) It indicates the ability of the colored man to enjoy liberty won by the bullet and consecrated by the ballot. It rescues the capital from influences which, however capable, must have been certainly calamitous. It invites to you Northern men and Northern money, and through you pours emigration, enterprise and wealth all over the fertile and semi-populated expanses of the South. Had you failed in your struggle to-day, the great capital started by Washington and saved by Grant would have been a sort of Flanders between the North and the South, where discordant factions, shaming the name of democracy, would have plotted new distrust in the one and new devastation and treachery in the other. But from this night you date a new evangelism; you begin another career; and, in the name of millions who are getting prouder every day of their country as they contrast it with the lacerated condition of such a nation as poor, bleeding France, so do they become prouder of the capital of that country. In their name and as one who has followed your fortunes through good and evil report, I congratulate you on the magnificent victory of to-day. (Applause.) Let us not, however, my friends, in this hour of victory forget those who aided us to prepare and organize victory. I have always believed that the party that seizes and controls the government of the city of Washington and the District of Columbia is of infinitely more importance than the party which seizes and controls many of the States of the Union. This is forcibly true of the present period, with its new elements of invention, of progress in the shape of railroads, telegraphs and printing presses. President Grant, evidently after a careful study of the situation, doubtless deploring the unhappy feuds among his political supporters, encouraged the new territorial system incorporated by Congress, and began his recognition of it by the significant appointment of Henry D. Cooke as Governor. I desire to be quite candid when I say, while wholly supporting the selection of Mr. Cooke I did not suppose that with all his large means, earned by hard and honest toil, he would enter into the canvass with the determination, wisdom and enthusiasm he has displayed. To these qualities, so fully foreshadowed in his inaugural speech, he has added a generosity and a toleration which have been crowned by extraordinary results; he has conciliated and brought together discordant friends; he has counselled the appointment of representative men of both races; he has advocated education and manufactures; he has encouraged art and science, and he has brought to bear upon his whole policy a comprehensive statesmanship which shows him to be a citizen above mere personal ambition and regardless of the narrow influences supposed to surround the possessor of large wealth. But while we honor Governor Cooke for these attributes let us not forget the man without whom there would have been no republican victory to-day. That man is President Grant. (Applause.) I do not conceal from you, my friends, that I have deplored some recent events in our great organization, and have not hesitated to give utterance to my sentiments in this direction. But the President's two recent messages—that in regard to St. Domingo and that demanding the protection of the Union men of the South—have convinced me that if the republican party desires success in 1872 it must be under the banner carried by the man who led them to victory in 1868. These two State papers alone establish the fact that he will have no policy against the will of the people, and that he will employ all the powers of the government to protect the people in the enjoyment of their own opinions, and supplemented as the latter has been by the prompt passage of the bill enforcing the fourteenth amendment to the constitution and sustaining the rights of the people of the South, in accordance with his message asking such legislation, and signed promptly by him this very day—this fact completely dissipates all accusations that he is not the firm and fervent friend of the loyal people of America, white and black.

We are in the very forefront of the next Presidential campaign. Your great victory of to-day is the trumpet call to national battle. (Applause.) The democracy will be reinforced next year by cohorts such as they did not dream of in their philosophy of 1868. They have two great treasuries from which to draw their subsidies—the treasury of the British free traders in Liverpool and the treasury of the democratic free traders in New York. It is no figure of speech to say that unless the democracy can elect a democratic President in 1872 British manufactures will go down and the people of England will demand of their rulers the higher wages which at once enlighten and elevate the workingmen of America. These combinations, working to a common centre, will place in the hands of the democratic party next year at least ten millions of dollars to be wielded by men who are now shaping the Legislature of New York so as to make that State secure to them and to enable them to seize Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and even Ohio, and to wield these States to a South consolidated in support of their policy, never denied and repeatedly stated, of repudiation of the national debt, the overthrow of the three amendments to the constitution, the recession of the negro to virtual slavery, the assertion of State rights and the destruction of the ballot. (Applause.) Had you failed to-day your city would have been a copy of the Tammanied New York. Here the fulcrum would have been placed whence to move the South into new rebellion and new desolation. But now, under the lead of the soldier who rescued you from the rebellion and whose administration of the national government has secured for him the confidence of the whole American people, whose generosity to Lee and the Southern army at Appomattox in April of 1865 has never known retiring ebb, and whose claims to renomination to the office he has filled so honorably in the midst of unutterable difficulties is now conceded by friend and foe, our city has not only been delivered from the damaging control of a party pledged to unimaginable retrogression, but the country itself saved from a terrible reaction. (Applause.)

Of the twenty-two members of the House of Delegates the republicans elect fifteen and the democrats seven.

General Chipman, republican, is elected Delegate in Congress by a majority of 4,087 over Richard T. Merrick, democrat.

THE LATEST WEATHER REPORT.

WAR DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER, WASHINGTON, April 21—1:30 A. M.

Synopsis for the Past Twenty-four Hours.

The barometer has fallen on the Pacific coast, with a slight fall in the temperature, since Wednesday night. The central low pressure has moved from Wisconsin northeastward to Canada, and is followed by a rapid increase in pressure in the Northwest, where, however, the cloudiness, with occasional light rain and snow, still prevails. Light rains have fallen on the Gulf and Atlantic coasts, where at present clear or partially cloudy weather with light southwest winds very generally prevails. The northeast winds on Lake Superior have abated in force, and westerly or southwesterly winds have during the day prevailed from Lake Michigan, south and eastward. The barometer has risen on the Gulf and is now rising on the south and middle Atlantic.

Probabilities.

It is probable that the barometer will continue to rise north and west of Indiana, with clearing up weather and brisk northwesterly winds. Clear or partially cloudy weather, with fresh winds, will probably be experienced on Friday from the lower Mississippi to the Eastern States.

OBITUARY.

William A. Moore.

We regret to announce the death of this popular and well known theatrical manager, which sad event took place in this city yesterday. Mr. Moore had been confined to his home for over two years, suffering from dropsy and heart disease, and the mental anxiety caused by his straitened circumstances and his inability to place his family above want was only equalled by the physical pain he suffered. He was born in Bath, England, in May, 1825, and made his début in the United States in 1849, at the Astor Place Opera House, as a singing witch in "Macbeth." Subsequently he held the position of prompter at Niblo's Garden. During the engagement of the Ravel Family at the same theatre in 1856-57 he was stage manager, and on the close of their engagement travelled with the family. In 1859 Mr. Moore went to Europe with James M. Nixon and engaged the Cooke's Royal Circus, with which he returned, when he became manager of Niblo's, and during the following year was proprietor of the bar and refreshment saloon. During the season of 1865-66 he was stage manager at the Arch street theatre, Philadelphia, and was afterwards employed as travelling business agent for Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams. When Mr. Williams opened the Broadway theatre Moore was appointed manager—a position he retained until the theatre was closed forever.

As is the case with too many members of his profession Mr. Moore did not "look out for the rainy day" when in prosperous circumstances. He leaves behind a wife and three children in actual want, and we trust that managers and actors will display their traditional benevolence by according to them that assistance in the name of the deceased which they, for his sake as well as for their own, so much deserve.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

FINAL PASSAGE OF THE ELECTION BILL.

The Supply Bill Passed with Amendments in the Senate.

Proposed Impeachment of Judge Woodruff.

Parting Testimonials to the Officers of the Legislature.

THE FINAL ADJOURNMENT TO-DAY.

WINANS' LETTER OF DEFENCE.

Love of Erie the Influencing Cause of His Defection.

ALBANY, April 20, 1871.

The reading of Denny Burns' resolution calling upon our Senators and Representatives in Congress to move for the created a decided sensation in the Assembly this morning. The resolution, with its heavy batch of charges as to how the Judge had made supervisors of election out of notoriously bad characters and ex-convicts, was handed up to the Clerk's desk just as the House was about to adjourn. All the names of the supervisors were read carefully. Considerable merriment was occasioned by the details that were given as to the wayward ways of some of the scamps; how one had "cut a boy" and another had spent a few years at an up-the-river town as a guest of the Warden of the State Prison, and how a third had got hold of a nice gold watch which didn't belong to him, and which, it is supposed, he had the heartlessness to wind up with in a pawn shop of small dimensions and large profits. The constant repetition by the Clerk of the words burglary, murder and highway robbery after almost every name seemed to tickle immensely, and even the republicans appeared to take the whole thing as a very good joke. In fact, but few of the democrats looked serious, or even tried to look as though they thought the resolution and the charges would ever amount to anything. Goodrich, who always has his say on every subject, was the only republican who attempted to "go" for the prosecuting party, and he did so by asking for information as to whether the men whose names were being read were the democrats whom the Judge had appointed as supervisors. This created quite a guffaw, and when the reading of the precious document had been concluded he again tried to put in a word on the subject, but the House adjourned before he could catch the Speaker's eye, or, rather, before the Speaker's eye had seen fit to wander in his direction.

THE FANCY OF THE GALLERIES

UNIFORMED CONDUCTORS.

An attempt was made during the rush of business this afternoon to have a bill passed repealing the act which requires conductors of railroads to be uniformed. The bill did not actually repeal the act, but it virtually did by providing that a uniform cap and a badge should be all the uniform required. Fields got in an amendment that the companies should pay for the uniforms. This was voted down, after exciting considerable discussion, which finally ended by the defeat of the bill. It is claimed that the old act is disregarded by the majority of railroad companies, but that is certainly no argument to show that the act is not a good one. If properly enforced by the proper authorities passengers on many roads could be saved no little trouble.

THAT BIG INSURANCE BILL.

Probably one of the most extraordinary bills that was ever introduced in the Legislature was the bill entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation and future regulation of life, health and casualty insurance companies, and in relation to agencies of such companies," was killed to-day in the Assembly. The main interest of the bill was undoubtedly a good one, but it was drawn up in such a way that it would virtually have placed every insurance company at the mercy of the Superintendent of the Insurance Department. Strict supervision by the State of the business done by the companies is a thing that cannot be too highly commended, but it is quite another thing to give the unlimited control of every company into the hands of one man, as regards every department of its business. The bill was passed by the Senate without being amended in the slightest degree, and it was only when it fell into the hands of the Insurance Committee of the lower House that were scooped out. General Miller was the author of the bill in its original shape, and for weeks past had endeavored to have it referred to the committee with power to report complete, but he was unable to gain his point. Two members of the committee, Burns and Selkreg, finally got hold of it and struck out the most objectionable features. The advocates of the bill were afraid to allow the measure to go into Committee of the Whole; even after the pruning process had been gone through with, and this fact of itself drew out against it an opposition that would have otherwise probably not have appeared at all. It was killed on motion of Mr. Nelson, of Rockland, to strike out the enacting clause. The motion was carried by a vote of seventy-five to twenty, and a motion to reconsider was voted down overwhelmingly. To give you an idea what the bill would have given to the Superintendent if passed in its original form, I need only refer to a section or two as it stood when first drafted. One declared it to be the duty of the Superintendent, if he "suspected"—that's the word—the correctness of any annual statement of any company, to cause an examination, &c. Another prohibited any company from consolidating with another, ever "after obtaining the consent of the majority of the trustees," unless—and here's where the committee put in their erasing pen—unless it could beforehand get the consent of the Superintendent. Yet another gave him the appointment of all receivers, the fixing of their compensation, the approval of what clerk and actuary hire they should have. One section was an extraordinary one. After providing that if "in the opinion" of the Superintendent any company should "appear" in such a condition as to render the issuing of additional policies and annuity bonds

AN IMMENSE POWER

INJURIOUS TO THE PUBLIC INTEREST,

it went on to state that after the Supreme Court had heard allegations and proofs the Superintendent should appoint a "receiver of all the assets" of the company. This was not bad for the Superintendent, but what was this conclusion of the section? "And in no case shall a receiver of any insurance company be appointed upon the application of any other person than the Superintendent of the Insurance Department, except by and with his consent in writing." This indirectly took the whole control of the receivership business out of the hands of the Supreme Court. Had the real friends of the bill acted wisely they could have made it so strong that its defeat would have been out of the question; but they persisted in keeping it out of the Committee of the Whole, even after Selkreg and Burns had knocked the "bones" out of it, and now have only themselves to thank for the terrible defeat they met with. One of the provisions of the bill was an excellent one. It prohibited insurance companies from interposing as a defence to an action, after three years from the issuing of any policy, that such policy was obtained by any misstatement or misrepresentation, "not amounting to actual fraud on the part of the insured." This was the Flagg bill, in a shape more agreeable to the insurance companies. However, there is no use now of crying over spilled milk. The good provisions had to be killed because of the suspicions that were first excited when the measure put in its appearance in its original shape. Thus has ended the insurance legislation of the session, which has from the start caused such a hubbub and talk in both houses.

THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS.

Among the many bills passed to-day in the lower House was the Election bill and the Buffalo City Charter and Police bills. Two of these were of the number proscribed by the republican caucus, and their passage makes the humiliation of the caucusers complete. Of course, for the show of the thing, Littlejohn, Alberger and one or two other republicans spoke against the bills, but they knew that it was all of no use, and so they made no attempt at filibustering. The following is the Election bill in full, which the Governor's signature will make a law to-morrow.

The people of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:—

SECTION 1. At each annual or special election at which a Representative in Congress, Senator or member of Assembly is hereafter to be elected the Inspectors in the several election districts in this State shall provide and keep a separate box in which all ballots for Representatives in Congress, to be endorsed "Congress," shall be deposited; also a separate box in which all ballots for Senator, to be endorsed "Senate," shall be deposited; and also a separate box in which all ballots for member of Assembly, to be endorsed "Assembly," shall be deposited; and the ballots deposited in said several boxes shall be estimated and canvassed in the order named above, respectively, and immediately following the estimate and canvass of the ballots endorsed "State."

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

THE PACKING UP

of old and new duds preparatory to the homeward march has at last begun in downright earnest, and the bustle and confusion which prevail just now in and about the hotels reminds one very forcibly of the 1st of May in the neighborhood of a tenement house row in New York. Trunks full of all sorts, boxes crammed with legislative documents, valises bursting with garments that the washerwomen about town have not had a chance this week to get a scrub at, and negro waiters full of expectations as to the gross receipts, that are doubtful in their coming, for services rendered in the past, trip one up at every step in the hallway, vestibule and anterooms. In fact, everybody is bent on being ready for the grand exit, and everybody is doing his perspiring utmost to have all his little bills settled or excused in time to get up and get without delay when the Speaker's gavel to-morrow knocks the present Legislature into oblivion. Ever since Monday last there has been great lamentation among some of the New Yorkers on account of this now all absorbing topic of the adjournment, for they had been led, by strange and apparently reliable rumors, to believe that the final goodbys of the season would be on Tuesday night or at best on yesterday morning. Believing the "Boss" infallible on this subject they sent their trunks home by express and ever since the poor fellows who did not make their pile during the session have had to exist

WITHOUT A CHANGE OF LINEN.

Paper collars and dickies are now in great demand in certain quarters, and if by any mishap the grand wind up should not be gaveled out to-morrow there will be such consternation and such sudden dealings in made up paper things for wear and tear as will astonish this pious little village as it never was astonished before. There is but little doubt, however, that by to-morrow night the members will all be on their way home in as good a condition as they possibly can get themselves into in the hurry and flurry of the momentous occasion. Indeed, the fiat has gone forth from the head centreship from which radiates all the wires that keep the democratic machine in order that, come what will, suffer who may, the halls of Senate and Assembly that know the present members now shall know them no longer after nightfall until people who have more votes than they know what to do with may be perverse enough to send them back again. That the ship of State will suffer much by the majority of the crews present not being engaged again when she goes on another legislative voyage is very doubtful, and if the men who have an interest in the hulk, the masts the sails, and last, but not least, the cargo which she must always carry, should take it into their heads to pick up new hands all rounds, I do not think that the change could possibly be for the worse.

This evening, when the two houses reassembled, the best of prevailed upon all sides, and as bill after bill that was behind hand was shifted about from one House to another for final action, parliamentary discipline was relaxed, and members and outsiders mingled together on the floor in true democratic confusion. Indeed everybody seemed determined to wear a smile as "childlike and bland" as though scowls had never darkened any member's face when the war of legislative battle made even the fearless galleries tremble in their well patched boots. All hands had evidently made up their minds to bridge ever past differences and become for once "good fellows well met." Even the more bitter of the republican caucusers forgot their hard feelings toward and he and they chatted and laughed together as freely as though he had not done a good thing for himself, to the exclusion of a dozen others who were as willing to "go and do likewise"—on the sly—had there not been an awful slip between the cup and the lip just as they were making ready to feast and be merry. Weed, who had fought during the Viaduct fight with Hitchman and Armstrong and Fields, and the Lord knows who else, on the majority side of the House, until his "chances" for the session seemed utterly lost, hobnobbed in the most cordial way with all his old foes. Indeed, he it was who was finally put into the chair when the usual time-honored resolutions of thanks to the Speaker and the Clerk were offered and passed, after Littlejohn, Alvord and Husted had exhausted the English language for words to express their love and admiration for the Speaker, whom the former had good reason to style "the most prompt, impartial and energetic party leader he had ever known in his whole experience as a legislator." Even Goodrich, between whom and the Speaker the most desperate encounters had been had almost every day in the session, was so full of the milk of human kindness that he, too, had to fall into line, and while acknowledging that he and his fellows had been "ruled with a rod of iron," after all they would never forget to think of each other kindly, so long as there were two political parties under the sun. Randall was the only man who threw cold water upon the general good feeling by a series of resolutions denouncing, in the name of the Legislature, the military dictatorship at elections, exercised by the administration, but as they were laid over the cloud turned out to be a passing one only, that left no trace of dire dismay behind it. Under the good-humored circumstances of the delightful occasion it was quite natural that everything passed off smoothly, and that the House, while adding the result of the conference committee work on a naughty, knotty bill, should have taken a recess for a half hour, and, with Tom Fields in the chair, threw Creswell's Manual to the dogs and left parliamentary rules for the time being to be observed by the Senate alone. It is needless to enter into the details of that was had during the mock session, to describe how the doors were crowded to suffocation by hundreds of persons who had scented the sport from without, in the lobbies and vestibules; how the galleries were literally packed by a multitude who applauded and roared with laughter at the spicy parts of the proceedings below with as much enthusiasm as though they were real. Nor would it be necessary to tell how all sorts of ridiculous bills were read and amended; how poetry about the amenities of legislative life was spun out by the yard by a country laureate rhymster, or how a message was received from the Governor in the shape of an empty bottle and was referred to the Committee on Judiciary with power to report completely full—bottle and committee—and how it all wound up by stirring debates about the "profit" of the session and the hopes that were blasted and those that were realized. The Senate got rid of all the ordinary bills this evening, and sat until a late hour debating

THE CHARITY BILL.

The Senators were in as jolly a humor as the Assemblymen, although the lobbies were crowded with clergymen, who were anxiously awaiting the fate of their little appropriations and buttonholing every Senator they could get into an out of the way corner. Mindful that, although the Senate in the afternoon had knocked the Weed & Parsons printing clause for $152,000 out of the Supply bill, they had managed to put into it a million dollars more than the House, the "Boss" got on his economical horse and succeeded in cutting all the charities down fifty per cent.

TO-MORROW FORENOON THE CONFERENCE COMMITTEES

will settle the fate of the State Appropriation, the Supply and the Charity bills, and then the goodbys will be spoken and the Legislature will be among the worthless things of the past.

THE REPUBLICANS,

who have held a caucus with a view of healing all breaches made in the party, have decided not to issue their address to the people until a week after the adjournment. Winans will then come in for his share of the howl, and it is said his reply will shake the dry bones badly, the statements in certain partisan papers to the contrary notwithstanding. Here let me repeat that several of the minority were ready to go over to the majority on certain valuable considerations being made beforehand, and that the only reason they did not succeed was because they were slower than was good for them. Fellows who prate about refusing $5,000 a piece to vote for one of the bills proscribed by the caucusers of last week, several of whom voted for the Water Supply bill for $100 each, although they had resolved in caucus to oppose it, may mouth virtue as long as they please, but it will be of little avail. It is the sheerest nonsense for either party in the Legislature that dies to-morrow to boast now or hereafter of its integrity during the session. They each have had their black sheep, but a few republicans succeeded in turning the scales in their favor for dishonesty long ago.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 20, 1871.

THE SUPPLY BILL

was taken up at the point where it was left last night—on the New Capital Commission and appropriation. The appropriation was made $650,000.

Mr. CHAPMAN moved to strike out all names of Commissioners and leave the Governor to appoint all the Commissioners.

The CHAIR decided a motion to reconsider the vote naming Commissioners, as put in by the Assembly and already published, was necessary, as the Senate had adopted those names.

Mr. CHAPMAN moved a reconsideration. Lost. So the Commission as named by the Assembly stands.

Mr. SANFORD moved to strike out the appropriation and not make any. Lost.

Mr. KENNEDY moved to strike out the item of $20,000 to be paid for the Washington relics. Lost.

Mr. MURPHY moved to insert the amendment that no printing done in contravention of law shall be paid for.

Mr. CHAPMAN moved to add that this shall not apply to work already completed. Adopted—15 to 8.

Mr. MORGAN moved to add $21,000 for the Hudson River Hospital for Insane. Carried.

Mr. KENNEDY moved to give $2,000 to James Terwilliger, as secretary of the Capitol Commissioners. This he was entitled to, according to an understanding; but the Comptroller found no authority to pay it.

Mr. LOW opposed the motion and it was lost—13 to 14.

Mr. LORD moved several amendments, among which was one to strike out the item to pay $6,000 counsel fees in the Witbeck murder case. This was lost. The item to pay Henry M. Williams $10,000 for services as Commissioner to the French Exposition, stricken out last week, was restored.

Mr. LEWIS moved $5,000 to the Law Library of the Eighth district.

Mr. TWEED moved to amend, by giving $1,000 to each of the districts. Carried.

Mr. LEWIS moved an extra appropriation to the library of the Eighth district of $2,500. Carried.

Mr. WOODIN moved $4,000 to the New York Prison Association. Carried.

Mr. PARKER moved to insert a paragraph to pay Weed & Parsons for printing completed and tendered the State, but which was in the office at the time of the fire and was burned; also that the work be duplicated and paid for.

Mr. TWEED moved to pay for work which was completed, but which was not delivered and stored in the printing office for the convenience of the State. He was willing to do what was just and right by these parties. He owed them no favors nor any ill will; although they aid parties who were in the habit of abusing him, he could afford to let them abuse and then do justice. The amendment was adopted.

Mr. WOODIN moved for $25,000 to build an armory at Auburn. Carried.

The bill was then

REPORTED

to the Senate.

In the Senate Mr SANFORD moved to strike out the appro-

The House met at half past ten o'clock and received a message from the Senate announcing its agreement to the conference report on the Ku Klux bill, and the passage of the concurrent resolution for a final adjournment at two o'clock to day

The House proceeded to consider the conference report on the Ku Klux bill.

Mr. WILLARD (dem.) of Tenn.—The minority member of the Conference Committee, said he had not signed the report particularly on account of its retaining the section for a test oath to jurors, a measure which the democratic side of the House regarded with more horror than it even did the Sherman amendment. He appealed to the House to pause before it sent such a message to the people of the South, and not to irritate and provoke them more.

Mr. KERR, (dem.) of Ind., expressed the opinion that there did not exist in the country any such condition of things as would justify the enactment of the bill either in its original form or in its modified form. There was no intelligent popular sentiment in the country that demanded or justified such a law. It was an attempt to force popular sentiment. It was addressed to the passions of the country. It was based upon no existing necessity in the land. There was nowhere such a condition of insubordination as either called for or could be relieved or cured by it. It was a remarkable fact that one half the entire press of the country almost without a dissenting voice, condemned and denounced such legislation, and that a very large and most respectable class of the other half of the press with great earnestness and great ability equally condemned and denounced it. That was true of some of the ablest of the organs of the republican party. He invited attention to the latest expression of one of the most sagacious, able and honorable organs of the republican party in the country, the Chicago Tribune. (Loud and sneering laughter on the republican side of the House.) Mr. Kerr said he would wait for the gentlemen to conclude their laughter. He was entirely willing that they should enjoy their joke. It was a very good thing, and in order to aid their enjoyment he would ask the Clerk to read the article from the Chicago Tribune of last Thursday entitled, "What the Sword Sees the Law."

The article having been read, Mr. KERR said that he commended it to the careful and prayerful consideration of the gentlemen on the other side of the House who had been so very merry at the idea of the Chicago Tribune being a leading organ of the republican party. Whether it was or not he believed the day would very soon come when the gentlemen on that side of the House would be sorry that they had not followed the wise counsels given them by that paper

Mr. BECK (dem.) of Ky. opposed the report. He regarded it and the other conference report as only intensifying what the Senate had determined to do. There had been only twelve votes cast in the House against the repeal of the jurors' test oath, and yet the conferees on the part of the House had surrendered that measure to the Senate although without it the bill would not have passed the House originally. It was an absolute, unconditional surrender of the only thing in the old that rendered it tolerable. The Sherman amendment would never have hurt anybody, but the bill in its present form excluded from the jury box the Attorney General of the United States, and excluded men of high position in the South who had joined the republican party. General Longstreet could not sit on a jury though he could hold the highest office in the land. No man rallied or democrat who ever fed a Confederate soldier, could sit on a jury. There was not a federal officer in the House, no even excepting General Butler who had ever done an act of kindness to a Confederate soldier that would not be ineligible to sit on a jury. A distinguished federal general had told him last night that this law would exclude more than half his army corps from the jury box because they had emptied their haversacks to a number of Confederate prisoners returned to the front. All these federal soldiers would be excluded from the jury box, if a Bustead or an Underwood or any other man, to whom Jeffreys would be an angel of light, saw fit to exclude them. It was an infamous proceeding and this was put in the bill on purpose of ... enabling the President to send down an infamous and corrupt judge whenever there was a political prosecution to exclude every honest man, every white man, and to pack a jury to hang any person he wanted to have hanged. In his judgment the conferees on the part of the House had been recreant to their duty, and should be held up before the country as men who had abandoned the rights and privileges of the House and of the people.

Mr. BUTLER, (rep.) of Mass., denied that the law as to jurors' oaths was properly subject to the construction which Mr. Beck gave it. It was not enough that persons had fed or clothed Confederate soldiers, it was necessary to show that it was done for the purpose of aiding the rebellion. It was an act of rebellion not an act of charity, that would keep them out of the jury box. He ridiculed the constitutional objections made yesterday to the Sherman amendment, and said he had known men who had mistaken dyspepsia for conscience, and men who had mistaken their doubts and qualms for constitutional law. He looked upon the substitute for the Sherman amendment as utterly fruitless and useless, a mere illusion, a delusion. The effect of it would be as absurd as to bring a suit against the three hundred foxes, with firebrands tied to their tails, as a remedy for burning the corn. As far as he knew they were the original Ku Klux. (Laughter.) There was not the first pretence of remedy in that substitute. There was not a man who believed that there ever would be a verdict under it. The object was merely to throw dust in the eyes of the people, but after all, he should go for it just as he often had to go for deficiency bills because they had to be passed. He would therefore take this bill, with the load, cum onere.

Mr. GARFIELD, (rep.) of Ohio, replied to Mr. Beck's objections in regard to the jury test oath, and reminded the House that in that respect the bill was a remedial measure, as it modified the existing law on the subject. In reply to the remarks of Mr. Butler he reminded the House of the mythological god who ate up his own children as fast as they were born into the world

Mr. BUTLER—What was his name? (Laughter.)

Mr. GARFIELD—He was a very saturnine gentleman. (Laughter.) The gentleman from Massachusetts had a child of his own which he wished to get born into the world, to get it a home in the Congress of the United States, but the monster could not sit as it sat here in this House at all, and from that hour the gentleman has been dissatisfied with everything attempted in the way of Ku Klux legislation. Now that the whole republican party is in line on this report the gentleman acts in character when he comes up to throw all the contempt he possibly can upon this bill. I do not regard it as a measure either of wisdom or ... than that to dismiss with a ... malediction and contempt the fruit of these six weeks' labor on this question.

The House proceeded to vote on the conference report, and it was agreed to by a strictly party vote—yeas 93, nays 74.

So the bill goes to the President for his signature

Mr. CONGER, (rep.) of Mich., moved that Mr. Foster, a member elect from Michigan, be sworn in

The motion was opposed by Messrs. Dawes, Banks, Brooks of N. Y. and Potter, as proposing to establish a dangerous precedent, Mr. Foster not having any credentials to present, and it was withdrawn.

Mr. BUTLER proceeded as follows:—

WHAT ... THE SECRET ...

Had Mr. Davis contented himself with this statement without words of personal epithet and characterization, I should ... be called upon to notice further him or it. But he adds the following words:—

It was not my intention to bring before the Senate any controversy with the other ... recognized black... coward and scoundrel of the United States who himself, does not dissent from the general judgment against him.

I never exchanged a word with General Butler and such were our relations up to the time of the scene in this chamber.

SUCCESSIVE OF PISTOLS AND COFFEE.

Taking this account of this statement of Mr. Davis to be precisely true, it shows that he promoted the complaint of one who had been treated by a general of the United States in command of a garrisoned city as a rebel—a complaint made ... and not even under the sanction of the commander in chief of that officer, the great and good ... that he called to his aid the political influence of a colleague and a Representative to further his ... but after hearing the supposed grievance the President ... the action of his officer, notwithstanding the political ... of the two supporting the complaint; thereupon, having failed before the tribunal of his own choosing, Mr. Davis took advantage of his position of Senator of the United States, which gave him the ear of the country, to promulgate a slander against that officer

He says that he again presented his rejected resolution ... the same ... statement of an already alleged ... slander without application ever to the ... held at the head of one of the ... whereupon he claims to have received a ... be deemed discourteous from that officer. ... for the third time Mr. Davis ... advantage of his position as a Senator of the United States to avenge himself for fancied insult by denouncing his assumed enemy in every form of opprobrious epithet ... he was personally safe in so doing. He was protected by his age. He was also ... under his senatorial toga, which made it a breach of the privilege of the Senate to call him to account for words spoken there. He was guarded by the constitution. The officer could therefore call him to no account for slanders there published either in the courts of law or even on the so called field of honor if one might there shoot at a mark thus sheltered, guarded, shielded, protected against any reply or defence, safely out of the reach of justice in the future. Mr. Davis admits that he hurled his calumnies and ejected the noisome contents of his revilings at his absent antagonist after the most high toned manner of Southern chivalry.

Assuming the account of Mr. Davis of Kentucky, of his own assaults upon an absent person from his bomb proof and non-clad position, to be literally and exactly true—which it is not—I submit to the candid judgment of the country whether the officer or the Senator acted the part of a brawling coward.

IMMUNITIES OF OLD AGE.

But what shall be said if this account by Mr. Davis of himself, his doings and exploits is in fact, in circumstance in detail and in general untrue? which I propose to show by the evidence of his own speeches and resolutions from the Globe.

He says in his late statement:—

"The President declined to take any action in the case. Thereupon I moved a resolution for the appointment of a select committee by the Senate to investigate this affair of Mr. Brother."

That is not true. A resolution, given below, of entirely different purport—was the only one about General Butler that Mr. Davis ever introduced. He says:—

"The Senate voted it down."

That is not true. The Senate never was called to vote upon even that resolution. Again:—

"At the ensuing session I introduced it again, when the majority again refused it."

That is not true. He never did introduce the resolution again at the ensuing session, and it was never voted upon at all. Again he says:—

"On both occasions of offering this resolution I stated to the Senate the facts as recounted by Mr. Brother as the foundation of introducing it."

That is not true. On no occasion, till the 7th instant did he, when offering a resolution or in any other way, state to the Senate or ... here publicly any facts concerning General Butler as recounted by Mr. Brother or anybody else, as the foundation for introducing a resolution or otherwise. He says:—

"A few days after having moved this resolution a second time I received a discourteous note from General Butler."

It is not true that he ever moved the resolution a second time. It is not true that he received a discourteous note from General Butler, although he did receive a note, which I will ask to have read in a moment from the Globe, which Davis himself at the time pronounced one that every man would write under the circumstances.

"Thereupon he says I pronounced General Butler a military plunderer, and that his cowardice and incompetence as a commander had brought shame and dishonor upon his country, its government and arms at Big Bethel, New Orleans and Wilmington."

It is not true that he pronounced in the Senate that General Butler was a military plunderer and that his cowardice and incompetence as a commander had brought shame and dishonor upon his country, its government and arms at Big Bethel, New Orleans and Wilmington. He never mentioned in the Senate Big Bethel, New Orleans or Wilmington in connection with General Butler. It was not possible in the nature of things that he could have spoken of Wilmington, because the last mention, till the present month, Mr. Davis made of General Butler in the Senate was on the 8th day of June 1864, and General Butler had never been at Wilmington, or within 250 miles of it during the war, until December, 1864 more than six months afterwards, when he commanded the Fort Fisher expedition

GOES FOR CAREFF GRIEVOUSLY.

I have taken, so far only Mr. Davis' own account of his own acts. Many things can be pardoned for the failure of memory in old age. But failure of memory is the inability to recall what has in fact happened, not the ability to recall what never did and never could happen. So there is no refuge for the falsehoods of Mr. Davis by the most charitable allowance for his increasing infirmities.

I beg leave now to read from the Globe exactly what and all every word Mr. Davis did say, which will show that the denials of his truthfulness just made by me are absolutely correct and that the statements made by himself of his own supposed doings are as absolutely untrue.

On the 31 day of May 1864, Mr. Davis, without a word of preface, introduced a resolution in manner following. I quote from the Globe:—

"Mr. DAVIS—I submit the following resolution, which I ask to have read and printed:—

Whereas it has been frequently charged, in the public prints and other modes, that when the leaders of the recent rebellion were engaged in plotting and maturing it Benjamin F. Butler was cognizant of and privy to their treasonable purposes and gave them his countenance, sympathy and support; and that he, the said Butler, after some of the rebel States had published ordinances of secession, turned against the conspirators whom he had been sustaining to get position and office under the government of the United States, to enable him to consummate his own personal and corrupt objects; and that after he was appointed to and while he was acting in the military service he was, by himself and his accomplice, A. J. Butler, and many others, guilty of many acts of fraud, peculation and embezzlement against the United States, and many acts of extortion, plunder, despotism, oppression and cruelty against individuals, therefore:

Be it resolved, That the President of the Senate appoint a committee of three to investigate all such charges against the said Butler, that said committee have power to sit during the recess of the Senate, to employ a clerk, to send for persons and papers, and that it report all the testimony and its proceedings to the next session of the Senate."

Mr. WILSON—I object to the consideration or printing of that resolution

The PRESIDENT pro tempore—Objection being made, it will lie over.

No further action or debate was asked or had upon that resolution until on the 8th day of June, nine days after.

Senator HARRIS, having called up his bill, and being about to put it on its passage, Mr. DAVIS rose and said:—

"Will the Senator from New York allow me a moment to say a word personal to myself?

"Mr. HARRIS—I have no objection.

"Mr. DAVIS—I have received a letter, which I will read to the Senate:—

"HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, June 3, 1864.

"SIR—I have read your resolution of inquiry. You can do me no greater favor than to have every act of my political life, which commenced on the first day of November 1840 and ended on the 18th day of April 1861 most thoroughly scrutinized. I will thank you also to have every act of my official life, which began as a brigadier general of the Massachusetts militia in the April of and will end when this war does if it is sooner, subjected to the like examination. I have no favors to ask but before ... justice that the ... may not ... considered. Your obedient servant,

BENJAMIN F. BUTLER,

Major General United States Volunteers.

GARRETT DAVIS, Esq., Member of the Senate of the United States from Kentucky."

Mr. DAVIS—... is couched in terms with ... every ... an individual ... imputations against him, would ... the terms of the letter certainly ... General Butler in my estimation and are somewhat ... of ... his innocency. He may be innocent of the charges imputed in the resolution which I ... I may be innocent. I had no personal information on the subject.

I have no personal prejudice against General Butler. I never saw him that I am conscious of. If he and all men against whom such charges can be made can challenge the ... an investigation, to know it would afford satisfaction. I am conscious that I never felt an impulse or a disposition to have an innocent man punished nor an innocent man charged, and it always affords me pleasure for a man who is charged, and who is innocent, to have an opportunity and be able to exculpate himself.

General Butler says in his letter that he had read my resolution. Of course he understands its terms and its effects. He is a man of ability and large experience, and no doubt of parliamentary learning, and fully and correctly appreciates the appropriate effect of the resolution if it should pass. He not only in this letter desires but he challenges investigation and scrutiny. Of course he invites it according to the terms of the resolution which I have offered. The resolution is that a select committee of three be raised by the Chair to investigate the conduct of General Butler according to the terms expressed in the resolution that it have power to sit during vacation of the Senate and to send for persons and papers. I understand General Butler to have accepted the issue and to take it up just in the form in which it has been tendered to him. Now, sir, as a Senator and as a man I feel perfectly confident I ... justice in this matter to enter upon this investigation and the judgment of his action upon the facts that may be collected with an entirely just judgment, and to render him justice according to the truth of his case.

I therefore hope in confidence to his wishes ... request that the Senate will permit the resolution to be read that they will vote on it without any debate that it will pass it ... will ... to be false and authorize it to proceed to the execution of the resolution as the resolution would clear. It will, as General Butler seems to desire. I therefore ask that the resolution be read and that the Senate pass it.

Mr. HARRIS—I hope that will be postponed until after I have passed my bill

The PRESIDENT pro tempore—The question is on the motion of the Senator from New York."

So the matter passed by, the case being out of its place and the Globe shows never was called up again for further debate or vote. Mr. Davis never said a word more to General Butler until he listened to him.

It will be observed that this letter produced by Mr. Davis to the Senate after nearly seven years, he claims to have been discourteous, but which ... at the time he found no fault, but said—"This letter is couched in terms which every man would ... in ... relating to his ... imputations against him ... all this was ... the right, for the purpose of showing the shadow of justification for his attack upon me, to which he has deliberately falsified before the Senate and the country his own acts not to say mine. He has characterized a letter "discourteous" of which, when he received it, he spoke in terms of praise. He claims to have denounced me as cowardly and incompetent as a military commander upon occasions where he never did so do. He claims to have stated to the Senate a special case of my wrongdoing to induce the Senate to act, which he never did do, and all for what purpose? For the purpose of excusing himself for an unmanly and profane attack upon me for listening to his speech.

I submit once more to the judgment of the House and the country whether the officer who, in all he has done as charged has been fully justified by his superior the President and never has been impeached by any other or the wilful falsifier of his own record to justify himself in attacking an unoffending person, most deserves the epithet of scoundrel.

But why should I living hope to escape the vituperous defamation of a ... who, claiming to be a Christian in reliance even of the maxim of heathen Rome—that nothing be said of the dead save good—who ... upon the new made grave and with unclean talons ... feasts upon the corpse of the lamented patriot Stanton, declaring—

"If justice had been dealt out to him in his lifetime for his crimes he would have been hung ... for murder and put in the penitentiary ten thousand times for his crimes."

In this perhaps I ought to content myself here, but for nearly nine years I have ... the ... It may be the hour has come now to say a word, not of explanation for that which needs none, but ...

To all the ... charges of taking small amounts of money and property from rebels I ... make once for all answer. I claim to have captured and levied assessment of nearly three millions of dollars. I charged myself with that amount upon the books of my department and reported the same to the proper officers. My accounts have been for nine years open to inspection ... and challenge investigation as I never have done. All was done by military orders of every one of which my ... has ... copies so that anything ... by them can easily be found.

Coming in the 1st of May into a starving city, ... that the ... inhabitants under my care, I must provide for their health and against ... large expenditures, and I determined those who had caused the wrong should bear the burden. Whereupon I issued a series of orders, from which the following are extracts:—

NEW ORLEANS, May 9, 1862.

"The deplorable state of destitution and hunger of the mechanics and working classes of this city has been brought to the knowledge of the Commanding General.

"He has yielded to every suggestion made by the city government and ordered every method of furnishing food to the people of New Orleans that government desired. No relief by those officials has yet been afforded.

* * * * * * * *

"Ready only for war we had not prepared ourselves to feed the hungry and relieve the distressed with provisions. But to the extent possible within the power of the Commanding General it shall be done.

He has captured a quantity of beef and sugar intended for the rebels in the field. A thousand barrels of these stores will be distributed among the deserving poor of this city, from whom the rebels had plundered it, even although some of the supplies will go to supply the craving wants of the wives and children of those now herding at Camp Moore and elsewhere in arms against the United States."

NEW ORLEANS June 4 1862.

"TO THE MILITARY COMMANDANT AND CITY COUNCIL OF NEW ORLEANS:—

GENTLEMEN—Painful necessity compels some action in relation to the unemployed and starving poor of New Orleans. Men willing to labor cannot get work by which to support themselves and families and are suffering for food.

The condition of the streets of the city calls for the prompt action for ... and the perfect ... of ...

"The necessities of military operations will detain in the city a larger number of those who commonly leave it during the summer, especially women and children than are usually resident here during the hot months. Their health must be cared for by you. I will care for my troops. The miasma which sickens the one will harm the other. The epidemics so earnestly prayed for by the wicked will hardly sweep away the strong man, although he may be armed, and leave the weaker woman and child untouched.

* * * * * * * *

"3 That the United States shall issue to each laborer so employed for each day's work a full ration for a soldier, containing over fifty ounces of wholesome food, which with economy will support a man and a woman."

NEW ORLEANS August 4, 1862.

"It appears that the need of relief to the destitute poor of the city requires more extended measures and greater outlay than have yet been made.

"It becomes a question, in justice, upon whom should this burden fall?

"Clearly upon those who have brought this great calamity upon their fellow citizens.

* * * * * * * *

"The United States government does its share when it protects, defends and preserves the people in the enjoyment of law order and calm quiet.

"There are two classes who it would seem peculiarly fit should at first contribute to this end. First those individuals and corporations who have aided the rebellion with their means and second those who have endeavored to destroy the commercial prosperity of the city, upon which the welfare of its inhabitants depends.

* * * * * * * *

"In taxing both these classes to relieve the suffering poor of New Orleans—yet even though the needy be the starving wives and children of those in arms at Richmond and elsewhere against the United States—it will be impossible to make a mistake, save in having the assessment too easy and the burden too light.

"It is therefore ordered:—

"First.—That the sums in schedules annexed marked 'A' and 'B,' set against the names of the several persons business firms and corporations herein described, be, and hereby are assessed upon each respectively.

* * * * * * * *

"Third.—The money raised by this assessment to be a fund for the purpose of providing employment and food for the deserving poor people of New Orleans.

These and subsequent assessments raised the sum of ... dollars

Nor did I fail to report my doings for the approval of the President of the United States.

I read an extract from my report to the Secretary of War of October, 1862:—

"With these contributions I issued General Order No. 5..., which will explain itself and the raised nearly the amount of the tax therein set forth.

"But for what purpose? Not a dollar has gone in any way to the use of the United States. I am now employing 1,000 poor laborers as matter of charity, upon the streets and wharves of the city from this fund. I am distributing food to preserve from starvation 9,701 families containing 32,450 souls, daily and this done at an expense of $... per month. I am sustaining at an expense of $2,000 per month five asylums for widows and orphans. I am aiding the Charity Hospital to the extent of $5,000 per month.

HIS ANSWER TO REBELS GENERALLY.

Nor did my measures of relief stop here nor were these the only ones to be relieved. As soon as the health of the city was assured, by rigid quarantine laws and thorough cleanliness, I employed a like force in cutting a canal through the tangled cypress swamps between the city and Lake Pontchartrain to permit the winds to sweep from the lake to the river and drive out the floating miasma which had theretofore rendered the city in the summer nearly uninhabitable.

When that work was done, to give starving men employment the same force was used in order to fill up a parade ground opposite the Custom House from the battare of the receding river of four hundred and ninety thousand feet, which has since been sold by the city of New Orleans for millions of dollars.

Wherever I found runaway rebels, like Alexander Brother, reported to me as provost marshal in the Confederate States, who would thus escape their share of supporting their starving neighbors as a rule I caused their property to be sold at the auction block to be used for the same benevolent purposes.

I sent to the Treasury of the United States nearly a half a million dollars. I cared for many thousands of poor slaves who were thrown on the United States for protection and support. I enlisted four regiments of white and colored troops, and bought and fitted up several light draught steamers to penetrate the bayous and rivers to clear out guerillas.

All this took not one cent from the tax raised money of the loyal North.

I received for such administration the high commendation of my superiors and the plaudits of my countrymen, and I leave the facts of history, when the hour comes that calumnies buried against me cannot serve party purposes, as my best defence. For what I did in New Orleans or elsewhere, as commander of United States troops, I have neither apology, retraction nor explanation to make, save that I wish that I could have done more to serve and save my country.

Looking back at the almost despotic military power with which I was entrusted, and which I exercised, I wonder at my own continence and moderation. Let me assure my detractors as before, if I am ever forced into the same position once more the "little finger of Rehoboam will be heavier than the whole hand of Solomon."

I propose never again to answer to any charges of taking property away from rebels until some authentic complaint shall be made that I did not account to my government for what I took by virtue of its power.

HIS ANSWER TO SLANDERERS GENERALLY.

That calumny, to this hour, the spirit of detraction has not yet dared to put forth:

I have been asked, why not call for a committee of investigation of your administration, and thus yourself silence these slanders before the country? The answer is two fold. First, that no specific charge has ever been made from any respectable source worthy of investigation, and, secondly, I have proved, in my own experience, that the report of a committee of investigation, however full and complete in exoneration it may be, is no sufficient defence to the slanders that wicked malice can put forth through lying newspapers and other wise.

In the Forty first Congress the Military Committee of this House was charged with investigation into the affairs of the National Asylum for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, of which I had the high honor of being the president and acting treasurer. The investigation was pending before the committee nearly nine months. After a laborious examination a report was unanimously made by the committee, consisting of political friends and political opponents who must be presumed to have done their duty, exonerating the management of the asylum and fully exonerating the treasurer from all blame, of which the following is the concluding paragraph:—

"The committee have also come to the conclusion that the treasurer, having accounted for all funds of the asylum which ever came into his hands, by correct entries, and receivers ... is entirely ... of ... and thereby ... free ... of ... It is the ... duties and, therefore ... legislation to recommend to the House ... that they may be discharged from the further consideration of the same."

It would have been naturally supposed that such a report would have ... from ... calumny. But although the report requiring no legislative action, was laid on the table by unanimous consent in the House, yet the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Farnsworth) on the last night of the session, without indicating the subject ... by consent to ... remarks in the ... I was present and I did not object because it never occurred to me that any gentleman would take advantage of my consent to make a personal attack upon me in violation of the rules and privileges of the House. But in that I was mistaken. Weeks afterwards a most virulent and abusive speech was printed in the ... as if made in the House conveying to the public the impression that when delivered on this floor no reply could be made to it.

I have no words for characterization of this proceeding. The statement of it will suggest the proper one to the mind of every honorable man. I have no reply to make to that speech. It is not in fact, an attack upon me so far as the National Asylum is concerned, but a gross charge upon the Military Committee of the late House, three gentlemen of which are now members of this body, and know whether they acted negligently or corruptly in the discharge of their sworn duty. If they did not so do their report is the only defence that I need, and they are amply able to defend themselves from the charge of a corrupt report.

Into that speech was injected a garbled extract from the evidence in a suit in which I was neither party nor witness and an attempt was thereby made to show that I had some improper connection with the business not with the suit had risen. The party defendant to the suit is now deceased; but I read an extract from a letter of his counsel to the counsel on the other side which will show that I refuse to make to a slander to ... upon the country as it delivered in the House:—

"WASHINGTON, D. C., February 21, 1871.

MY DEAR GENERAL—I have received a letter from ... Esq., the solicitor of Mr. Horatio Ames, in which he writes me as follows:—

Mr. BECK submitted whether Mr. Butler had not violated the pledge he had made to the House when he got its consent to make the explanation that he would say nothing personal to Mr. Davis

Mr. BUTLER ... that ... He had merely said that he would make no attack upon him. ... for nearly nine years suffered from assaults and charges of having appropriated to his own use small amounts of money in Louisiana, and now he would answer them once for all. He had captured and levied assessments on the rebels of Louisiana to the amount of nearly three millions of dollars, and he had charged himself with the amount on the books of the department. Those books had been open nine years and every dollar ... not ... that he had not ... accounted for ... Referring to ... the last session in the ... Mr. Farnsworth ... in the ... street ... and ... was ... that act that gentleman had put himself out of the ... of civilized warfare and he would never hereafter consider that gentleman's tongue ... slander upon anybody—certainly not upon him

Mr. FARNSWORTH, (rep.) of Ill., asked and obtained permission to make a personal explanation in reply to Mr. Butler. He said it was too late in the day for that ... to ... protest ... He insisted that his (Mr. Farnsworth's) speech ... not anything to do with ... (Laughter.) ... the pursuit ... the management of the National Asylum for Disabled Soldiers he ... that the committee had not acted fairly ... requiring the Treasurer of the Institution (Mr. Butler) to produce his bank book, which would show that he had ... on hand from $100,000 to $150,000 of government money which he kept in his own private bank in his own name and with which he speculated.

Mr. BUTLER made the point of order that this was an attack ... instead of a personal explanation

The SPEAKER—Will the gentleman from Massachusetts state the words which he objects and the Chair will rule on the question?

Mr. BUTLER—I should say pretty much all of it (Laughter) when I am told that I have gorged myself with public money. I suppose that that does not require a point of order to be made.

The SPEAKER ruled that such language was out of order.

Mr. FARNSWORTH—The member from Massachusetts alluded to my speech as published in the Globe and I was only recounting the points of it to show that it was not unparliamentary.

The SPEAKER said he had no doubt that the language of the gentleman from Illinois was unparliamentary and so ruled with great hesitation.

Mr. Farnsworth was allowed by a vote of the House to proceed in order.

Mr. BANKS, (rep.) of Mass., remarked that it was not proper to ... unanimous consent to make a personal explanation and then make criminal charges against ...

The SPEAKER said he entirely agreed with the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. FARNSWORTH remarked that he also agreed with the gentleman from Massachusetts ... the transaction for the sale of a piece of property at Hampton, Va., for a National Asylum, the property having been owned by Mr. Butler, but having been transferred by him to his brother in law, Mr. Hildreth, to cover appearances. In conclusion he stated that in that transaction and the testimony given by Mr. Butler before the Committee on Military Affairs last session were before any petty jury of the United States, it would convict him (Butler) of embezzlement and perjury. (Laughter and great excitement.) That was all he had to say.

Mr. BUTLER remarked that he held in his hand a report of the Military Committee made last session on that subject, and he would read the closing paragraph of it as an answer to all that advertised calumny which might be put out against him anywhere.

The paragraph which he read states "that the committee was convinced that the funds of the National Asylum for Disabled Soldiers had been faithfully applied by the Board of Managers and that the general management of the several branches of the asylum has been efficient; also that the committee had come to the conclusion that the treasurer, having accounted for all the funds of the asylum that ever came into his hands, was to be entirely exonerated from any charge or suspicion of misappropriation, neglect or misconduct in the discharge of his duties."

Mr. BUTLER said in conclusion, that under that report he branded as false and calumnious everything that could be said against the president and treasurer of the National Asylum. It was for the Military Committee to say whether its members had been corrupted under his (Butler's) lead. They could vindicate their own honor. He had not their honor in charge. Their report was a shield to him against the attack of any man. He had no words for a characterization of that attack. Gentlemen should judge of it for themselves, coming as it did under the guise and false pretence of a personal explanation. There were twelve or fifteen gentlemen of the House whom he had taken to Fortress Monroe and to whom he had shown the property which he had sold to the National Asylum, and every man who ever saw it would think that in that transaction he had given $... to the disabled soldiers.

Mr. FARNSWORTH—The member from Massachusetts swore in the investigation that he did not ... his brother-in-law sold it (Laughter.)

Mr. BUTLER—Oh pshaw! pshaw! (Laughter.) That was one of the ... statement. It ... into the hands of my brother in law as security for money which he lent me.

Mr. FARNSWORTH—Your brother in law swore that he did not lend you any money. (Laughter.)

Mr. BUTLER—I cannot have any controversy with that man whom I would not believe under oath. (Laughter and Lammering from the Speaker's gavel.)

Referring to the witnesses who swore against him in the investigation he said that one of them was a runaway marine deserter whom he had been trying to hold to put ball and chain around his legs and that another was a Baltimore man, who had once served with him (Mr. Butler) for supposed gallant conduct, but had since gone down lower, lower, lower, until he had sunk to the position of being a witness for the member from Illinois. (Laughter.)

Mr. FARNSWORTH—And the other witnesses were the member from Massachusetts and his brother-in-law. (Renewed laughter and other manifestations of a thorough enjoyment of the scene.)

Mr. BUTLER remarked in conclusion that he would not again be drawn into a controversy on the subject. What was the use, he asked, of an investigation and of a report exonerating a man from all ... when such exoneration was made only the foundation of fresh charges and fresh calumnies directed from here? (Laughter.)

Mr. BECK asked and obtained leave to make a statement on behalf of the Senator from Kentucky, who he said, had been so foully denounced by the member from Massachusetts. That Senator and the member had had a controversy on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. BUTLER—Oh, no I had no controversy with him

Mr. BECK—The Senator denounced the member on the floor of the Senate as "a damned scoundrel," and I would characterize that as a controversy. (Laughter.) They had a quarrel on the floor of the Senate. It ought to have ended there, and would have ended there but for the fact that the member from Massachusetts saw fit to come on the floor of the House and use language grossly offensive to the Senator from Kentucky, and it was after that that the Senator had pronounced the speech which had been quoted by the member. The member from Massachusetts had a personal explanation to make, should have made it at once, but he had waited until last Tuesday, the day that Congress was to adjourn, and then asked leave to make it, having sent printed slips of it in advance to Boston and to the NEW YORK HERALD, knowing that the Senator would have left the city before he could have seen it in print. Thereupon I objected, because it had been held up so long, and not because I did not want to give the gentleman a chance for reparation.

Mr. BUTLER (interrupting)—The reason given by the gentleman was that he would not let me speak so long as the indictment against his State was continued.

Mr. BECK—If I had had an opportunity to reply to that indictment I would have done it in a way which I hope would have been worthy of the State. When the gentleman was trying to get leave to-day I asked him whether he would assail the Senator from Kentucky, and he replied that he would not, and on that statement members on the democratic side voted to give him the privilege. I did not believe what he said, and therefore voted against it. (Laughter.) When the member rises and announces that the Senator from Kentucky has been guilty of falsehood I deny it. I hurl it back, and I say that the character of that Senator is as good as that of any man upon earth. He never did wilfully tell a lie and no man before ever accused him of it. When the member said that the Senate was shielded by his age and that he did not seek the proper redress, I have only to say that while my Senator is neither a bully nor a blackguard the member can get any redress from him that he seeks outside of this hall or any where else. (Laughter.) I do not believe that it lies in the mouth of the member from Massachusetts to talk about my Senator being shielded by his age or to seeking proper redress. I have witnessed scenes with that member which satisfied me that he would not seek the redress to which he alludes. (Laughter.) He does not forget that I have, in the presence of fifteen members of the House, seen the member from Illinois (Mr. Farnsworth) put his fist in the face of the member from Massachusetts, denounce him in every way that one man can denounce another, until I had to say to other members of the committee standing by that I did not think one white man would take it without a fight, and that the decent negroes in New York State would fight over it. (Uproarious laughter.)

Mr. FARNSWORTH (derisively)—It was on account of his extreme age perhaps. (Shouts of laughter.)

Mr. BUTLER (pointing to Mr. Farnsworth)—He is not a white man.

Mr. ELDRIDGE (dem.) of Wis.—Now is the proper time to call in the chaplain. (Continuous laughter.)

Mr. COX, (dem.) of N. Y.—The coroner should be also sent for.

Mr. STOUGHTON (rep.) of Mich., a member of the Military Committee of the last House, defended the action of the majority of that committee and stated that there was ... gentleman from Massachusetts ... the National Asylum had been ... and ... that he had ... and honestly ... every dollar he had received from the Treasury of the United States. It was true that the committee did not require General Butler to produce his private bank account, but there was no pretence that he had converted a dollar of the public money to his own use. ... he had deposited the money in his own bank, but the committee had come to the conclusion that he had a right so to do, the only difference being that if the money was lost the ... would be personally responsible. There was no pretence or proof that there was any ... of ... money.

At this point of the discussion, and when the House was quite amused and excited over it, the Speaker's hammer descended, and he announced that the first session of the House of Representatives of the Forty second Congress was adjourned without day.

ST. JOSEPH'S HOME.

Proposed Erection of a New Building by the Sisters of Charity.

Two years and a half ago the Sisters of St. Vincent inaugurated their Home for Aged Women in a small tenement house. Two other similar homes were likewise made ready, the tenement house and the two adjoining lots having been bequeathed to the Sisters by a pious lady. Since the opening of these homes over 100 aged women have been cared for. The Sisters now propose to erect a building more suitable for the carrying out of the purpose of caring for the destitute aged. SPERM OIL BUTTER.

A Prussian Captain in Trouble in Brooklyn—Cruelty on Shipboard—Lamp Oil and Crackers as a Steady Diet.

Three of the hands on board the Prussian bark Rudolph now lying at the Atlantic Dock, Brooklyn, tell rather a remarkable story in regard to their treatment on board the vessel at the hands of Captain Louis Piska and the mate Rudolph Sherwood. These men shipped at Havana for this port with fair promises of pay on arrival, good treatment and good provisions. They were, however, treated in the most cruel manner and

WHIPPED WITH A ROPE'S END.

The vessel, they said, had very little provisions on board and it is said they did not get an opportunity to feast even their eyes on them. The mate, Sherwood, was in the habit of whipping them on the slightest provocation, and their voyage was one of great hardship. They were compelled to or go without, and this sort of food was anything but pleasant. The men whose names are Patrick ..., Louis M... and ... Edmonds appeared before Justice Walsh and obtained a warrant for the arrest of the captain and mate on charges of assault and battery. When they asked for their pay they said the captain butted them over their heads with a boat. The captain and mate were taken before Justice Walsh and the examination was set down for Monday next.

Alderman Mitchell general marshal announces the line of march will be as follows:—From the foot of Twenty third street to Eighth avenue to Jackson square, down Greenwich avenue to Sixth avenue and Carmine street, up Bleecker street to Broadway, and down Broadway to Spring street, to the headquarters of the Norton Association, in Hudson street, where they will disband. THE HOG BUTCHERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

The inhabitants in the neighborhood of West Fifty-second street and North river, who were interested in the abating of the nuisance of the proposed hog pens and hog slaughtering houses, desire to tender their thanks to you Mr. Editor, for the interest you have manifested in laying the statement of the facts before the public, through the medium of your valuable paper. We are gratified to learn that the honorable Board of Health have discountenanced the granting of said permit or license, thereby showing conclusively that the health of the inhabitants is a "consummation most devoutly to be wished" for. The people in the immediate vicinity of said neighborhood have been relieved of a terrible anxiety of mind by the prompt and decisive action of the Board of Health in abating this proposed nuisance, for, instead of having our streets reeking with filth from the driving of the hogs through the streets to the slaughter house and our atmosphere poisoned, we shall be allowed the blessing Heaven has granted us, of breathing pure wholesome and invigorating air. Again we reiterate a thousand thanks are due the honorable Board of Health and yourself from more than a thousand neighbors. INJURED PARTY.

Decision in the Hogan Will Case—Divorce Suits—Action Against a Life Insurance Company—Decisions—Business in the Court of General Sessions.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

The Old Matter of the Church Street Extension.

Before Judges Ingraham, Barnard and Cardozo.

Catharine A. Schuchardt et al. vs. The Mayor, &c., of the City of New York.—These are several suits brought jointly by owners of property taken for the Church street extension to recover from the city the value of the materials of which the buildings were composed. The cases have been frequently reported in the lower courts, and it is unnecessary to go over the various steps of their progress. The plaintiffs appealed from the demurrer of the defendants, said demurrer setting forth that the report of the commissioners was final as to the fee and the building materials, and an argument was heard on this appeal. It was insisted on behalf of the plaintiffs that in the report of the commissioners it was stated that the land would be required for the extension and certain amounts awarded therefor, but that by the terms of the report the materials of the buildings were not included; that this was understood and argued between the commission and the property owners; that also, by the terms of the report, the property owners were required to remove the materials, and if so, it was manifestly for their own benefit; that it has always been the custom in New York, except in cases of special legislation, to leave the materials to the property owners; that otherwise the city takes property not only without paying a just compensation, as required by the constitution of the State of New York, but without compensation whatever. It was also shown that by the statute of April 9, 1813, under which the city claims the land, the title is only transferred "in trust," and argued that, therefore, the city could take no more than was required for the trust.

It was claimed on the part of the city that the decision of the court below should be sustained; that it was there held that the confirmation by the Supreme Court was final and conclusive; and that the plaintiffs should have objected at that time, and that by omitting so to do they lost all power to object now. The answer to this was that at the time the report was presented for confirmation there was no cause to object, because the materials for which this suit is brought were given to the property owners by the report itself, and that it would be great injustice to deprive the plaintiffs of rights which did not exist at the time of confirmation, and did not arise until after a novel construction had been put upon the report.

Decision was reserved.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Decision in the Hogan Will Case.

Before Judge Sutherland.

Sarah C. Hatch vs. Clara M. Peugent.—A decision in this case, popularly known as the "Hogan will case," was rendered yesterday. The opinion, characteristic of those given by this Judge, is quite brief, but explicit and to the point. It is unnecessary to give a recapitulation of the facts in the case, they having been fully published in connection with the late trial. The following is

THE OPINION:

In view of certain recent cases in the Court of Appeals, referred to in the trial of the issues in this case, I do not think I would be justified, in viewing the verdict, so palpably against the weight of the evidence, as to grant the motion for a new trial on the minutes of the Court. The motion is therefore denied, but without costs. In making this decision I assume that, of course, the defendants, Eugene and Clara M. Peugnet, have a right to move for a new trial on a case or case and bill of exceptions, to be made and settled according to the rules and practice of this Court.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Theatrical Entertainments and the License Fees.

Before Judge Brady.

In re Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents vs. Albert Diers.—An application was made to punish the defendant for keeping, as alleged, a place where theatrical entertainments are given without having obtained the proper license. The application was made, of course, on the part of the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents, to whom such licenses go. It was granted by default.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

The Troubles and Tribulations of the Divorce Business.

Before Judge Monell.

Ford vs. Ford.—The plaintiff, it will be remembered, was placed under arrest for contempt of court in not paying alimony to his wife. The alimony ordered was ten dollars a week, and the payment was neglected till $260 were due. The case came up on a writ of habeas corpus to discharge him from arrest. The opposing lawyers—A. H. Reavey for the petitioner and H. C. Denison for the relatrix—talked at great length on the subject, and submitted counter affidavits; but neither the talks nor affidavits revealed any facts of interest additional to those heretofore published. The Court reserved its decision.

More of the Same Sort.

Before Judge Spencer.

Schmidt vs. Schmidt.—This is a case somewhat similar to the above, and the facts have already been given in the HERALD. The plaintiff has failed to pay alimony, as directed, and a motion was made for his arrest for contempt. The Judge listened patiently to the opposing counsel, and then ordered a reference to ascertain the facts.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM—PART I.

The Chilean Government Vessel Seizure and Dismissal of Complaint.

Before Judge Freedman.

Varsault vs. Murphy.—In this case, in which the assignee of Garrett W. Dyckman, formerly United States Vice Consul to Valparaiso, sued to recover for services official and unofficial rendered in regard to the seizure of the vessel Townsend Jones by the Chilean government on account of her bringing into port a cargo of arms and munitions of war, the complaint was dismissed. The ground of the dismissal was that the surrender of the vessel, though under protest, to the Chilean authorities was a virtual abandonment of her, and that the contract for the services rendered by the assignor being made subsequent to such surrender, was not binding on the owner of the vessel.

Suit Against a Life Insurance Company.

Before Judge Freedman.

Catharine Keveney vs. Excelsior Insurance Company.—A brother of the plaintiff, Thomas Keveney, in 1869 insured his life for $3,000 in the defendants' company, giving for the premium his note. At his death this premium note was unpaid. A suit was brought to recover on the policy. It was shown that the policy contained a clause that if a premium note remained unpaid after maturity, and that after it had matured and the premium remained unpaid the insured died the policy was vitiated. Upon this the Judge ordered a dismissal of the complaint.

Another Suit by the Same Party.

Catharine Keveney vs. The Globe Mutual Life Insurance Company.—The same brother of the plaintiff took out a life policy for $2,000 in the company of the defendants. The defence is that the note given for the premium was never paid, and, further, that misrepresentations were made by the insured in his application, in that he represented himself as a man of temperate habits, whereas, as alleged, he had delirium tremens about a year before his death, and his death was hastened by his continued intemperance. The case is still on.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Recorder Hackett.

AN ERRONEOUS VERDICT—A RESPECTABLE ENGRAVER CONVICTED OF A DANGEROUS ASSAULT GRANTED A NEW TRIAL.

Shortly after the opening of the court yesterday a motion was made to grant a new trial to Charles Archibald, who was convicted a few days since of an assault with intent to do bodily harm to William Sheehan, on the ground of newly discovered evidence. An affidavit of a party was read which set forth the fact that he was the man who fired a pistol, the ball of which entered Sheehan's hand. The accused, Archibald, who was an engraver for Harper Brothers, proved on the trial by several witnesses that he was inside the saloon at the time of the shooting, and he established an excellent character, but the jury found him guilty. After the rendition of the verdict some of the jurors expressed their doubts as to the correctness of their decision, and the Recorder was so well satisfied that a mistake had been made that he remanded Archibald to fully investigate the matter. His Honor granted the motion for a new trial, and directed the accused to be discharged upon his own recognizance.

AN ALLEGED BIGAMIST AT THE BAR.

Phillip Kern, who was charged with bigamy, was placed at the bar. It was stated that the prisoner married a young woman when intoxicated, but had committed no further improper act until the female discovered that he had a wife living. She left the State, stating that she would not prosecute him. The Recorder, in discharging Kern, advised him to join a temperance society.

AN ALLEGED WIFE MURDERER CONVICTED OF LARCENY.

James Woods was convicted of stealing a bale of cotton yarn on the 31st of March, worth forty dollars, the property of John Dawson. The case was so clear—an officer having caught the prisoner in the street, taking the bale in a wheelbarrow—that the jury rendered a verdict of guilty without leaving their seats.

Assistant District Attorney Sullivan made the important statement that Woods was confined in the Tombs over a year upon the charge of murdering his wife; but owing to the fact that the witnesses against Woods were occupants of shanties, built on the rocks up town, and they had moved away, rendering it impossible to find them, six weeks since the District Attorney consented to let Woods go. The Recorder observed that it sometimes happened in this world that criminals like Woods did not escape punishment. It was an extraordinary circumstance that eighteen months ago the prisoner was charged with the murder of his wife, and that in consequence of the prosecuting authorities not being able to get witnesses he (the Recorder) was compelled to discharge him. For the serious offence of which Woods was now convicted he would send him to the State Prison for five years.

A FEMALE FIGHT.

Matilda Shackleton was placed on trial charged with stabbing Josephine Wilson in the left breast with a small knife, on the 29th of March. The testimony developed the fact that the girl Wilson was fighting in James street with another girl, when the accused stepped in between them to separate them. The complainant alleged that the prisoner stabbed her. A girl who was looking on testified that the accused did not stab her. The preponderance of the testimony being in favor of the girl Shackleton the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty.

A "COOL" FORGER SENT TO SING SING.

John Stebbins pleaded guilty to forgery in the third degree, the complaint being that on the 21st of November he called at the place of business of Adam Young and purchased a pair of boots for thirty dollars, for which he tendered in payment a check on the Park National Bank for $103 and signed H. G. Stebbins & Son. When the check was presented at the bank it was found to be worthless. The prisoner was an exceedingly intelligent, elderly man, and promptly informed his Honor, in answer to an inquiry, that he served a term in a Rhode Island prison. In consideration of Stebbins saving the court the trouble of a trial three months were deducted from the punishment, which was four years and nine months' imprisonment in the State Prison. He also said that he had committed a good many crimes in his lifetime, but not forgery.

ANOTHER FORGER PLEADS GUILTY.

Frank L. Myles, against whom were three complaints, pleaded guilty to forgery in the third degree upon an indictment charging him with forging a check upon the Marine National Bank on the 11th of March for $100, with intent to defraud Nelson H. Leadbeater, by forging the endorsement of E. K. Willard. He was remanded for sentence.

A NEW DODGE—WARNING TO RAILROAD PASSENGERS ABOUT BAGGAGE CHECKS.

William Smith pleaded guilty to grand larceny. It seems that Mrs. Maria Fisk, of Germantown, Pa., had a trunk containing female apparel and jewelry worth $800, which was delivered on the 11th inst. by Dodd's Express at the New Haven depot, to be delivered to the owner there, and that an unknown hackman produced a card check, which was discovered to be a forgery, and upon the presentation of which he procured the trunk. A police officer traced the trunk to Page's Hotel, where Smith had engaged a room, at which time he handed a check to the clerk directing it to be sent to his room when it arrived.

The prisoner was remanded for sentence.

AN ASSAULT UPON A ROUNDSMAN BY OFFICER MATHIAS.

F. Joseph Mathias, an officer of the Fourth precinct, was tried and convicted of assault and battery.

Peter Melley, a roundsman of that precinct, who, it seemed, had made two complaints against Mathias for breach of police regulations, and on the afternoon of the 24th of February they conversed together on the corner of Oliver and Elizabeth streets, and Mathias struck him three or four times with his club. Captains of two precincts and others were sworn after the rendition of the verdict, all of whom gave Mathias (who had been a member of the force for seven years previous to his dismissal) an excellent character. Recorder Hackett, in disposing of the matter, said that he had at first intended to punish the defendant as severely as the law allowed; but after hearing the statements of the captains he would suspend judgment. His Honor stated, however, that the next policeman convicted of assaulting a brother officer would be severely dealt with by the Court.

AN ESCAPED CONVICT ACQUITTED OF LARCENY AND TAKEN BACK TO SING SING.

John Sheridan was tried upon a charge of grand larceny. Charles Uppermann, the keeper of a lodging house at 435 Ninth avenue, testifying that on the 17th of March he lost a gold watch and chain and $100 in money. The testimony against the prisoner was so slight that the prosecuting officer abandoned the case, and the jury acquitted him.

Just before leaving the bar the Recorder asked Sheridan how many times he had been in the State Prison, to which he promptly replied, "Three times." A police officer in attendance, knowing that Sheridan was an escaped convict, arrested him on the spot, and took him back to Sing Sing.

AN ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCE MAN ON TRIAL.

Patrick W. Smith, against whom were several complaints for defrauding citizens, was put on trial, charged with procuring $140 worth of cigars from Emile Stork, 250 Eighth avenue, on the 21st of March, for which he gave in payment a worthless check upon the Ocean National Bank. The case will be finished this morning.

COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS.

Commencement of a New Era in the History of the Court—An Alleged London Pickpocket in a Fix—An Electric Witness—An African Melee in Laurens Street Last Sunday—A Case for the Superintendent of Police—The Exercise of the Increased Power Commenced—An Affecting Scene.

Before Judge Dowling.

The Court of Special Sessions entered upon a new phase of existence yesterday. After the court had been formally opened the clerk was instructed to make the following announcement:—

In relation to the punishment of offenders tried in the Court of Special Sessions of the peace in and for the city and county of New York, passed April 5, 1871—three-fifths being present—the people of the city and county of New York, represented in the Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:—

SECTION 1. In all convictions for misdemeanors tried in the Court of Special Sessions of the peace in and for the city and county of New York the said Court shall have power to impose the same punishment as is authorized by law to be inflicted in like causes tried in the Court of General Sessions in said city and county.

SEC. 2. Hereafter, if either of the justices now designated by law to hold the Court of Special Sessions shall be unable to act by reason of sickness or other disability, or shall be absent from the city, it shall be the duty of the Mayor of the city of New York to designate either the Recorder or City Judge of said city and county to act in the place of said justice during the continuance of such disability.

The principal feature in the new law, and that which is considered most important, is the permission to in aggravated cases; for in many cases it will insure lengthy and severe punishment, as the defendant can be held in prison, if the Court so decrees, until the fine is paid. The other point is the extension of punishment from six to twelve months for brutal assaults and the worst cases of larceny. Judge Dowling soon found an occasion for exercising the increased power placed in his hands, as shown in the following report. The seal of record has been supplied by the Secretary of State.

A BULL(Y) WITNESS.

The first case called was that of The People vs. Thomas J. Williams. Thomas had the misfortune the other day to be out walking, when he heard a woman say she had been robbed; that her pocketbook had been stolen and a certain woman in front of her had stolen it. He undertook to consult the officer whom the woman had called and suggested an attempt to obtain possession of the pocketbook again. He walked up to her and put his hand under her shawl and tried to get away from her what he said he considered as the property of the other woman. He didn't succeed in recovering the pocketbook, and the woman on whom he made the attempt denied all knowledge of the affair and gave him into custody on a charge of attempting to pick her pocket. He was to be detained as a witness in the first case, but wished to decline the honor as he didn't wish to be seen in the company of a policeman, and hence become notorious. The second woman, however, was so positive that he tried to steal her money that he was put under bail to answer. In the court yesterday the question of the missing pocketbook was lost in this peculiar individual, who spoke as though he was actuated by telegraph, so rapid was his flow of language. He began by disclaiming any knowledge of either of the parties, and the accusation that he was he treated as being too absurd to entertain for an instant. "Where were you born?" asked the Judge. "In North Carolina; but I was taken away to England when I was very young. It is sixteen years since I left this country, but, oh of course I am not a citizen. I have been a currier in London, where I have resided for years in 'the leather district,' and have only returned here a few months ago. I live at 57 Vesey street."

He assured the Judge he knew him when he was a sergeant of police, but that appeared too thin, for his Honor said he had not an office at that time.

"Did you not try to steal this lady's pocketbook?" asked the Court.

"Ah, well, really that's too bad; this 'ere woman was a long way ahead of me, and I runs after her and tried to bring the money back. By Jove, what am I taken for?"

"You seem to tell a straight story, but if you are ever brought here again your rapid speech will not save you. You can go," said his Honor.

AFRICANS ON A SUNDAY SPREE.

Henry Jones, John Brown and Andrew Douglas, three "Gemmen from Africa," were charged by Louis Henken with breaking his jaw bone, on Sunday evening last. The three defendants have been Sunday morning habitués of a beer saloon, No. 22 Laurens street, for many months past. Last Sunday they congregated there and drank liquor until twelve o'clock in the morning, and again at six o'clock in the evening. After they had taken in "full cargoes," they became a little troublesome, and, it appears, wanted to fight. The keeper of the saloon, who looked as though he had been pickled in lager, testified that they came to his place "as usual" on Sunday, and that in the evening, after they were drunk with the liquor sold them, one of the party came behind the counter and wanted to because he had growled at them once or twice during the evening. He declared he would "save the dog," and a general mêlée occurred. The "gentlemen of color" upset the soft soap and broke several signs, and so destroyed the equanimity of the saloon keeper that he drew a revolver and fired it into the air in order to attract the attention of the police. A mob gathered around and hooting and stone throwing commenced, resulting in breaking the jaw of poor Henken, spoiling the looks of his face and forever damaging his speech. The poor old man presented a sad appearance, and seemed greatly affected at his misfortune, as he was merely a bystander, like a hundred others. The mother of one of the prisoners, a colored woman, wearing a coal-scuttle bonnet and green spectacles, said she was disgusted with her son for desecrating the Sabbath day in such a way, insisted it was a case of punishment, and hoped it would "smash up the beastly German who took all the poor men's wages on a Sunday."

Judge, to keeper of beer saloon—I wish the stone had hit you instead of the poor old man. If I had a complaint here against you I should not hesitate to send you to the Penitentiary for six months. You open your store on Sunday morning and sell liquors against the laws of the State, and collect a crowd of roughs in your place. I shall speak to the Superintendent of Police about you and ask him to place a man to watch your premises. I warn you to beware. You encourage rowdies in your place and disturb quiet, orderly people who are engaged in divine worship. I will not forget you. Each of the prisoners will go to the Penitentiary for two months, and when they return I hope they will abstain from assisting German liquor dealers in breaking the law.

THE FIRST NINE MONTHS.

Mary A. Henry charged Edward Baker with kicking her in a most brutal manner about the body and in the eye. The defendant certainly had not the appearance of an ordinarily civilized being, and he was treated to nine months in the Penitentiary.

AN AFFECTING SCENE.

One of the most touching and romantic scenes ever witnessed in a court of law was enacted in this court yesterday. It was a case of real affection, a scarce acquisition. John Hyde, a lad of about eleven years of age, had been put under bail to answer for some trifling offence. The complainant did not appear, but no sooner did the lad appear behind the bar than his sister, a little light-haired girl, rose in her seat and began weeping bitterly, sobbing out her brother's Christian name in the most piteous manner. The lad began to cry also.

"Come forward, little girl," said the Judge.

She came out, and, grasping her brother around the neck, she drew him towards her and sobbed loudly. "Oh, Johnny, Johnny, my poor mother! What will she say? What has brought you here?" So affectionate and real was the scene that a dozen pocket-handkerchiefs were in immediate requisition. All the females in court were in tears, and not a few men began to blubber.

"Take your brother away," said his Honor.

"Come along, Johnny. There, there," said the little creature, and she kissed him each time; the two leaving the court sobbing until their crying died away in the distance.

BROOKLYN COURTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Action to Condemn Property Seized.

Before Judge Benedict.

Assistant District Attorney Allen yesterday instituted proceedings in the District Court for the forfeiture of the rectifying establishment of H. Reiners, on Stagg street, E. D., which was seized by the revenue officers for alleged violation of the revenue laws. The property seized is valued at about $15,000.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Seizure of a Rectifying Establishment—The Revenue Officers Resisted.

Before Commissioner Jones.

Hugh Brady and John Lowery were arrested by Assistant Assessor at Large Frederick Cochen, who found them engaged in putting illicit spirits into H. Reiners' rectifying establishment, on Stagg street, Eastern District. Officer Cochen made an examination of the premises, and found, as he reports, that large quantities of illicit spirits had been received there, and that the law had been violated to a great extent. He procured the seizure of the establishment and contents, including about 10,000 gallons of spirits, by Deputy Collector Patterson, and the Marshal took possession. The officers met with considerable resistance, and during a row which occurred officer Cochen and several others were injured, though not severely. Cochen discharged his pistol at one of the assailants and then broke it on the fellow's head. All the books and papers of the place were stolen.

Brady and Lowery were taken before Commissioner Jones, when they waived an examination and were held to bail in $2,500 each to await the action of the Grand Jury. Mr. Reiners, the owner of the establishment, was not found. No other arrests were made. The parties who resisted the officers succeeded in making their escape.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Suit Against an Insurance Company.

Before Judge Gilbert.

William D. Murphy vs. The Imperial Fire Insurance Company.—Plaintiff brought suit to recover $2,500, the amount of a policy upon his house, which was destroyed by fire on the 28th of December, 1869. The company refused to pay on the ground that the property had been transferred by plaintiff to his brother-in-law, one Riley, three weeks prior to the fire. On the part of the plaintiff it was shown that Murphy himself took the deed to the Register's office and recorded it in Riley's name. Riley was not a party to the transaction, and the deed was not delivered to him until after the fire, and then Murphy only gave it to him to take over to the insurance company when he went to inquire why the policy was not paid.

The jury rendered a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $2,728, including interest.

The Contested Will Case.

Frederick Baker, Appellant, vs. Amelia Dederky, Respondent.—The plaintiff in this case, which was reported in the HERALD of yesterday, brought this action to test the validity of the will of Catharine Ahren's, Amelia's mother, who died in January, 1870. Mrs. Ahren bequeathed only $100 to defendant, $500 each to two nieces and the balance of the property to Baker, her nephew. The Surrogate declared the will null and void, but the General Term of the Supreme Court directed that issue be framed for trial by jury.

The trial of the case was concluded yesterday, and resulted in a verdict in favor of plaintiff on all the issues. The allegation was that he had obtained Mrs. Ahren's signature to the will by fraudulent means.

CITY COURT.

Warning to Persons Who Get on the Front Platforms of Street Cars.

Before Judge Neilson.

John T. Murtagh vs. The Brooklyn and Coney Island Railroad Company.—On the 22d of December last the plaintiff attempted to get on the front platform of one of the company's cars in Smith street, when he was thrown to the ground and, as he alleged, received injuries which will disable him for life. He, therefore, brought suit to recover damages in the sum of $10,000.

It was claimed on the part of the defence that persons getting on the front platform did so at their own risk, and that in this case plaintiff should have got on the rear platform. It was admitted that the car was not stopped, but it was also claimed that the plaintiff did not signal the driver. Testimony was introduced to show that after the accident Murtagh got on the car and did not seem to have been seriously injured. The doctor who attended plaintiff swore that his injuries were slight, and that he appeared to be under the influence of liquor. A motion for a non-suit on the ground of contributive negligence was granted by the Court.

BROOKLYN COURT CALENDARS.

CITY COURT—Parts 1 and 2—Judges Neilson and Thompson.—Nos. 41, 42, 140, 132, 111, 4, 165. Part 3—Judge McCue.—Special term.

ALBANY, April 20, 1871.

THE ERIE WAR.

THE BOOKS NOT YET PRODUCED.

Jay Gould Shelters Himself Under "Articles of Association."

The most important proceedings in the reference before Mr. Kenneth G. White, the Master, were those which took place yesterday in regard to the 60,054 shares of Erie stock claimed by Heath and Raphael, the English shareholders, to be their property. Mr. Jay Gould, the president of the Erie Company, was examined at considerable length, and it will be seen from his testimony, fully reported below, that he declines to produce the books called for in the Master's order, on the ground that he is not certain whether he has or has not a right to do so under the articles of association of the Erie Company. The Master will immediately report to the Court the fact that Mr. Gould declines to produce the books, and it will then remain for the Court to say whether he shall be compelled to furnish to the Master the books called for under the order.

Mr. Southmayd appeared as counsel for the English shareholders, Heath and Raphael, and Mr. Pierrepont and Mr. Morgan for the Erie Railway Company.

THE PROCEEDINGS YESTERDAY.

E. Ogden White, sworn, and examined by Mr. Southmayd—I am Secretary of the New York Stock Exchange.

Q. That is the institution which, in common parlance, is called the Board of Brokers? A. Yes.

Q. Produce the resolution of the Stock Exchange with regard to registration of stock of the Erie Railway Company as kept in an office other than its own? A. I produce the resolution.

Mr. Morgan objected to the resolution.

The Master allowed it to be put in.

Mr. Southmayd—It is Rule 3 of the constitution and bylaws of the Stock Exchange, and is as follows:—

The Stock Exchange will not call or deal in any active speculative stock of any company a registry of whose stock is not kept in some responsible bank, trust company or other satisfactory agency, and which shall not give public notice of the time of establishing such registry of the number of shares so entrusted to be registered, and shall not give at least thirty days' notice through the newspapers, and in writing to the President of the Stock Exchange of any intended increase of the number of shares, either direct or through the issue of convertible bonds, and shall not at the same time give notice of the object for which such issue of stock or bonds is about to be made.

Witness—I have a certified copy of this rule, which I will leave with the Master. (The Master marked the paper as an exhibit in the case.) This rule, continued the witness, was adopted on the 30th of November, 1868, to take effect on the 31st of January, 1869.

Cross-examined by Mr. Pierrepont—Q. Do you know of this rule having been departed from in any instance? A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. Do you remember the case of the Rock Island Railroad Company? A. I remember that case; they departed from the rule, but afterwards came in under it.

Q. Was the stock of the Rock Island Railroad sold at the Board without being registered? A. That I could not tell; I should think not.

Q. Was there an increase of the registration made without any notice being given to the Board? A. It is very difficult for me to answer that, as I was not Secretary of the Stock Exchange at the time.

Q. What do you know about it, as a matter of public notoriety, that it was departed from, and the registration increased without any notice being given to the Board? A. I could not answer that; I do not know enough about it to answer.

Q. Do you know of it in the case of the Wabash? A. Not in the case of the Wabash that I recollect.

Q. Do you know whether, with regard to others, that was so or not? A. I think not; I did not hear of it to my knowledge being departed from.

Amos D. Williams sworn—Examined by Mr. Southmayd—I am a member of the New York Stock Exchange; I am a member of the committee of the Stock Exchange and a member of the committee on additions to the stock list; persons making applications to come before the committee in regard to stocks would come before us; any trouble occurring under the third rule is referred to our committee.

Q. Have you possession of the documents which were sent by the Erie Railway Company to the Stock Exchange in regard to the opening of a registration of their stock in the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company? A. Yes, I have them here in my possession.

Mr. Morgan objected to anything being said about those papers until they were first produced.

Witness—I have them here, in pursuance of a subpoena that was served on me.

Mr. Southmayd—There are two of them from the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and three from the Erie Railway Company.

The Witness—I produce five documents upon which the registration was originally made. The documents from the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company are signed by Mr. R. G. Ralston, president of that company, and those from the Erie Railway Company are signed by Jay Gould, president; one of them by Jay Gould and H. N. Otis, secretary.

Mr. Southmayd would like to know if the other side called upon him to prove the signatures to these papers.

Mr. Pierrepont said that was not necessary, as he knew the signatures to those papers.

Mr. Southmayd—I would like, at this stage of the case, to have it entered upon the record for whom Mr. Pierrepont appears. Mr. Morgan objects to the papers and Mr. Pierrepont does not.

Mr. Morgan—I withdraw the objection.

Mr. Pierrepont—As soon as you are through I will state all about it, how I came to be engaged in this case.

Examination continued—Q. Now, Mr. Williams, you were about to say how many papers were sent with respect to the registration? A. Two of those bear date on the 8th of September, and those of that date were not considered sufficiently strong to justify the Stock Exchange in putting the stock on the lists, and to enable that to be done the subsequent ones were sent down.

Mr. Southmayd put the papers in evidence, and read one of them, as follows:—

Buff Branch mortgage, $186,400; date of issue, July 1, 1861; due June, 1891.

The amount of sterling bonds, £1,000,000 ($4,844,400), September 1, 1865, due 1875.

Under a statute of this State the mortgage debt is convertible into stock only within ten years from date of issue. Ten years have expired on all but the sterling loan, and as that is selling at par in London there is no danger of cornering.

There is no local road that can be converted into the stock of this company, except in compliance with the rules of the Stock Exchange, by giving thirty days' notice, nor will any increase be made in any form, except in compliance with the aforesaid rule.

JAY GOULD, President.

The witness continued to say—I am a broker engaged in this business; my firm is that of E. D. Williams & Co., 43 Wall street; I have been a member of the Stock Exchange since 1856, with the exception of a single year; I am familiar with the system, as it exists in this city, with respect to the sale and delivery of stocks and stock certificates.

Q. Do you know what has been the practice or usage in this city since the institution of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company with regard to the sale and delivery of stock, and in respect to the certificates being registered in that company or not? A. To make the certificate pass current, it must be registered; otherwise, it would not pass; that is the condition of things up to the present time.

Q. In order to sell the stock as marketable stock it requires the registration of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company? A. Yes. If any one sent in to me 100 shares on certificates not registered I should not pay for them; that is the rule and custom of the Stock Exchange.

Q. It is not considered a good certificate on a contract for sale unless so registered—it is not marketable for the purpose of current sale? A. No, sir.

The witness was briefly cross-examined by Mr. Pierrepont. Q. Are you aware that this rule of which you have spoken has been departed from in the Rock Island stock? A. The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific stock; there was an increase of the capital stock of that company from nine millions to thirteen or fourteen millions; the stock, as it came in, was registered, but the reason the Rock Island was thrown out was because they did not give notice of the increase; but they afterwards registered; so far as the Board was concerned that stock did not pass in the Board, nor was it sold in the market or delivered, so far as I can remember; I do not call to mind any stock to which the rule applies that was not registered.

Q. I ask the witness to look at this certificate (one of the Heath and Raphael certificates) for ten shares of $100 each, and say, supposing it was uncancelled, would it be deliverable stock under the rule? A. I do not think it would, because it does not appear to have the Registrar's mark upon it; that mark should be across the face of the certificate; a good many have that mark on them and a good many have not.

Redirect—Q. If it was not one of the original certificates registered in the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company at the time it was passed and lacked the certificate of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and therefore was not a good delivery, was there any process that could make it a good delivery? A. It should have the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company's registration upon it.

Mr. Southmayd—For whom does Mr. Pierrepont appear?

Mr. Pierrepont, for the Erie Railway Company—This was an inquiry, he thought, in regard to 30,000 shares of the stock of Heath and Raphael. On this subject he had advised Mr. Gould to render all possible assistance by the production of the books and documents demanded by the Court. Heath and Raphael were holders of 60,000 shares of Erie stock and sent their certificates to the office of the company after the books were closed to be registered in the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. After this James H. Coleman was appointed receiver of this stock, which was delivered up to the company in September, 1870. This stock, he observed, had never been taken to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company and had not become marketable under the rules of the Stock Board. The coal strikes last winter and other disasters caused the receipts of Erie to fall off half a million a month. This rendered it necessary to raise money outside of the income to work the road. The Executive Committee, therefore, passed a resolution to issue convertible bonds that would equal the 30,000 shares of stock and use those bonds for the purpose of raising money to meet the requirements of the occasion. These bonds were sold for the market prices of the stock, and the amount was used to defray the company's expenses. These bonds, thus converted into stock and returned to the company, were represented by stock. The stock was sent to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company for registration, in order that this stock would be sold in the market to pay the holders of the bonds. As each parcel was sent down directions were given to the clerk of Erie to take cancelled certificates to the Farmers' Trust Company to the same amount, the more readily to facilitate their purpose, and the stock was sold in the usual manner. This statement Mr. Gould would substantiate on oath.

Mr. Southmayd—We have proved a fraud—the stealing of our stock. What has become of it? Mr. Pierrepont says Mr. Gould will state the truth upon his oath, perhaps upon his honor, as if we should be expected not to contradict his assertions. I do not regard Mr. Gould as a person who holds the relation which entitles his word of honor or oath to any extraordinary credit. We have proved the robbery; we are endeavoring to obtain redress in the usual manner.

JAY GOULD ON THE STAND.

Jay Gould, of Erie, was the next witness sworn. Examined by Mr. Southmayd.

Q. You are President of the Erie Railway Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Look at that summons, and say if it is a duplicate of the order served upon you, and whether you produce or decline to produce the papers which are there called for? A. The summons that was served upon me was a blue paper; I think this is a duplicate.

Q. Do you produce or decline to produce the papers and books described in that summons? A. I have made a personal examination of the books in the treasurer's and auditor's departments, and there is no entry containing an inventory of the stock.

By the Master—That is not the question. It is whether you produce or decline to produce the books and papers called for? A. The only entry there is the proceeds of the convertible bonds—$650,000.

Mr. Southmayd—I will ask the witness in detail.

Q. The first book called for in this order is the stock ledger, or the ledger in use from September 4, 1870, to the present time. Is there any such book? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. You don't know, then, whether there is or is not a stock ledger of the company of which you are president? A. I never saw it to my knowledge.

Q. Do you know whether there is a stock transfer book of the Erie Railway Company which was in use in September, 1870, and transfer books which were in use in December, 1870, and January, 1871—had your company any transfer books in those months? A. I presume so.

Q. Where are those books now? A. I don't know; I suppose they are in the office.

Q. Have you ever seen them? A. Never to my knowledge; I know that we sent down here three or four car loads of books.

Q. Who gave directions for the sending here of those books? A. I gave directions.

Q. What books did you give directions should be sent? A. I directed the transfer clerk to send such books as related to the transfer of those 60,000 shares of stock to Mr. Coleman, as receiver.

Q. Have you ever given any directions that the transfer books which related to the 30,000 shares which were issued and sold upon the street in lieu of 30,000 of Heath and Raphael's stock should be sent here? A. I supposed the whole of the books would be sent.

Q. Do you know anything of the register of daily balances or register of stock transfers kept in December, 1870, or January, 1871? A. I don't know of there being any such books.

Q. The stock-certificate book from which were cut the stock certificates issued by the company from the 28th December, 1870, to January 16, 1871, both inclusive—are there such books? A. I suppose so; I think they were all piled on the express wagon and sent here.

Mr. Southmayd—There was nothing of the sort. The two convertible bonds which were issued by the company in December, 1870, and January, 1871—one being for two millions and the other for one million—do you know of the existence of these two bonds? A. Yes, I know of their existence.

Q. You say you don't know whether your company has a stock ledger? A. I am entirely unfamiliar with the details of the bookkeeping department.

Q. You don't know anything about the stock ledger of your company? A. No, sir.

Q. Who of your company does know anything about it? A. I suppose the transfer clerk.

Q. If there is a stock ledger, who has the control of it? A. I don't know.

Q. If there are stock certificates and transfer books, who has the control of them? A. The transfer clerk.

Q. Have you the control of any of the books of the company? A. I control them through the different departments; they are all under my control.

Q. If the company is ordered to produce the books in court—the books that are now in the hands of the transfer clerk, locked up in his safe—who has the power to bring them down in compliance with the order of the Court or to have them sent down? A. I cannot tell without reference to the articles of association.

The Master—Is it within your power to produce them? A. I cannot say without reference to the articles of association of the company. (Laughter.)

Q. Do you always examine the articles of association before determining anything? A. Yes, in any extraordinary case.

Q. Your transfer clerk is John A. Hilton, and he has testified that most of the books and papers which are called for by this order were locked up in the safe in his room the last time he saw them. Whose direction is required, according to the course of business in the Erie office, to send those books down before the Master? Can the transfer clerk do it himself? A. I answer that the officers' powers are regulated by certain rules of the association, and I have never examined those rules with the view of ascertaining my powers.

Q. Who has the power if it is not yours or the transfer clerk's? A. I could not tell without referring to the articles of association.

Q. If you were engaged in a litigation in which you wanted to have those books produced in court, do you pretend to say that you do not know how to get them down to court? A. Before I undertook that responsibility I should examine very carefully the articles of association.

The Master—Has the Erie Company never had a litigation in which it was necessary to use their papers or books? A. Never; this power has never been brought into exercise; to take these books away might ruin the whole company.

Q. Can you tell me any one who has the power if you have not? A. I can only tell you that by referring to the charter of the association; that is the practical way to get at it; it was never put in practice before.

Q. Who are the powers that do things in that partial way except yourself? A. Mr. Fisk, Jr., the vice president; Mr. F. A. Lane and the board of directors. (The witness mentioned the names of the persons comprising the directory.)

The Master—You say you could not tell whether you had authority to direct those books to be produced unless you looked at the articles of association. I desire to ask you, as a matter of fact, whether, if you ordered your subordinates to produce those books, they would not be bound to produce them here, and whether it would not procure the production of them if you, seeing fit, ordered them? A. Let me explain.

The Master—Answer directly, one way or the other. A. I don't know; there are three sets of books—the books of the treasury, the books of the audit department and of the transfer department.

Q. You are president and nominal treasurer, are you not? A. I am president and nominal treasurer, Justin D. White is assistant treasurer and also one of the directors; I do not want to guess as to who has the power about the Erie concern if I have not of directing these books to be brought here; I could not give an intelligent answer on that point without examining the articles of association.

Q. Is there any other officer of the Erie Company who has that power? A. I had better confine myself to facts; I can give no other answer until I look at the charter.

Q. Is there any other person who has that power or whose order the transfer clerk will obey? A. The transfer clerk has charge.

Q. Answer the question—I repeat the question. A. I give the same answer; I don't know my powers; this question never rose since I became president of the company.

The Master—That is not the question here. I presume you are aware, as an officer of the company, whether your orders will be obeyed by your subordinates. I now ask you if they would inquire whether you had authority or not? A. No, sir.

Q. The question then is, if you order those books to be produced here they will be produced or not. I want to know, if you send from here a written order to the officials in the Grand Opera House, whether that order would not be obeyed and the books brought here if you direct? A. (The witness paused for a long time, evidently staggered by the question, which was a poser; finally he answered.) You ask me to give an opinion.

The Master—That is not the question. Would the books be produced here if you so directed? A. I do not think either one way or the other.

Q. Then you have no knowledge on the subject whether your authority would be obeyed or not? A. No, sir.

Mr. Southmayd asked for a suspension of the examination of this witness in order to resume the examination of John A Hilton, the transfer clerk.

This application was agreed to, and

Mr. Hilton was further examined. He said the last time he saw those books they were locked up in the safe in his office; he had the combination of the safe, unless it had been altered.

Q. If Mr. Gould, the president of the company, now here, directed you to go up to the Erie Railway office, open that safe and bring down those books, would it be done? A. The witness hesitated and finally said—If they were in the safe it would be done; I would obey that direction.

Jay Gould's testimony was then resumed:—

Q. Now, Mr. Gould, will you give that direction to Mr. Hilton or do you decline to produce such of the books as are called for in the order of the Master now in the safe kept by Mr. Hilton, as transfer clerk? A. If I have, by the rules of the association, power to give that order I will give it.

Q. Do you decline to say whether you will give such order or not? Will you give that order? A. I do not know whether I have the right to give it or not.

The Master—You have not given a proper answer to the question. Do you or do you not decline to give those directions? A. (A long pause.) Suppose you direct me to do an illegal act?

The Master—That is not the question. You have no right to presume anything of the kind. I repeat the question—whether you will or will not give those directions? A. (The witness, driven into a corner, paused again.) Before I answer that question I should prefer to know my duties precisely in the premises.

Mr. Pierrepont—Then Mr. Gould declines to answer the question.

The Master—Does he say he declines? A. I have not anything further to say on that matter; if that is a declension I stand by the answer.

The Master—Do you decline? A. I stand on my answer.

Mr. Southmayd asked the Master to positively instruct the witness to give directions to bring those books.

The Master observed that he had already given him such directions. You (Mr. Southmayd) can serve an order on him again if you like. The Master then put upon the minutes an entry that he here directed the witness and had heretofore directed him by a written order served upon him to produce the books called for in such order, or to direct their production.

Witness—Can't you specify the books?

The Master—They are mentioned in the order.

Mr. Southmayd—What do you say to that, witness?

The Witness—I have already given an answer.

The Master—That is no answer at all. Here is a person, the transfer clerk, having physical control of the books, and you decline to order him to bring them here.

The Witness—I don't propose to dispute any of your orders, or to be discourteous, but in this matter I do not know my powers. You interrupt the treasury department $50,000 or $60,000 every day, and I don't want to do that unless I have the power to do it. If such power is invested in me I will do it.

The Master—The road is entitled to some consideration. Justice also requires consideration; but the road must give way to the interest of the latter. Mr. Southmayd, if you desire you can go further with this matter.

Mr. Southmayd—You intend to certify to the Court that Mr. Gould states he declines to produce these books.

The Master—Yes; that not only does he decline to produce the books, but also that he will not give an order for their production.

Witness—You will enter my explanation, will you not?

The Master—No, sir; it is no answer at all; your counsel, even, does not claim that it is.

Witness—It occurs to me that I have given you a good common sense answer. In reply to Mr. Southmayd the witness said the executive committee of the Erie Railway Company was composed of Fisk, Jr., William M. Tweed, F. A. Lane and himself. None of those gentlemen, to his knowledge, had control over the books.

Q. Has anybody control over the books? A. I have answered that before; to answer it intelligently I have to look at the articles of association and charter of the company. (Merriment in court.)

The Master—You stated a few moments ago that you sent four loads of books from the office, which books I directed to be produced. From where did you get the authority to send them? A. I cannot say, unless it was yours.

Q. Where did you find the authority to send those books here? A. They were books of cancelled stock.

Q. Where did you get the authority? A. I must have assumed it.

Q. The order was complied with when you gave it? A. I suppose so.

Q. And if you took upon yourself this authority again it would be obeyed? A. I have never given a thought to the subject.

Mr. Southmayd intimated that he should apply to the Court in regard to the evidence of Mr. Gould, and, in reply to the Master Counsel, said he had several other questions to ask the witness, but he could not ask them without the books.

The Master then adjourned the inquiry until twelve o'clock on Monday, and directed all the witnesses to be in attendance at that time.

THE M'CAHILL WILL CASE.

Continuation of the Testimony—The Last Hours of the Testator.

The adjourned examination in the McCahill will case took place yesterday before Surrogate Hutchings. There was a large attendance in the court room, and the interest in the proceedings appears to be unabated. Ex-Judge Pierrepont and Mr. Flanagan appeared for the contestant (the widow McCahill), and Mr. Vanderpoel for the proponents. Mr. McCahill died worth about $600,000.

THE NEPHEW OF THE TESTATOR ON THE STAND.

Bryan McCahill was the first witness. He testified as follows:—The testator, Bryan McCahill, brought me out to this country when I was ten years old.

Q. What were his habits as to drinking liquor? A. He was in the habit of drinking; he was an intemperate man for several years before his death; I called to see him two weeks after the commencement of his last sickness; before that I met him frequently down the avenue; went to the second story of his house, where he lay sick, and called upon him daily; was with him when he died.

Q. Between that time and the time he died what was his daily condition? A. He was sick, drinking continually, and he was very feeble; he used to rave and talk to himself; he used to exclaim, "Where am I?" and he was told in his house, in Forty-ninth street; "Am I not in a house on Essex street?" he said at one time that there were women in the house and that he wanted them put out; I saw him drinking; he took very little medicine; he kept drinking till the day before his death; I remember that I spoke to him one night while he was in the sick chair; he said he'd like the family to come together and arrange as to how the property should be divided; I said to him, "I understood you have made a will;" and he said he had; he said he had left a consideration for me; he said that John McCahill was very ungrateful, and he was afraid to trust him; that he was afraid he would not do right with the family; he said that before and after.

Q. What did he say about Tom McCahill in connection with the will? A. He said that he was afraid to trust Tom McCahill; on the Saturday two weeks previous to his death he said he desired to make an alteration in his will; he said, "I shall send for my will and make an alteration in it."

Q. From the time that you first saw him after his last sickness till the day of his death, from the facts which you have stated, what would you say as to his soundness of mind?

Mr. Vanderpoel objected to the question and it was overruled.

The question was then put in another form.

Q. What is your opinion as to whether deceased was rational or irrational while speaking to you? A. Irrational; deceased was under the influence of liquor all the while, and he was incompetent to do any business.

The latter part of the answer being objected to it was ruled out.

Q. What effect had his custom of drinking upon his mental faculties? A. He was dull, raving and wandering in his ideas in consequence of his perpetual drinking.

Cross-examined by Mr. Vanderpoel—Mr. McCahill talked to me about his property—his real estate; he said, "I wish you to keep it and divide it up among you, and not sell it;" he spoke on the subject three or four weeks before his death; he was very clear the night he talked about the matter; he had not drank much; he looked rational at the time; the only conversation I had with him about the property was on the night I referred to; he seemed to be rational at that time; when he spoke on other occasions about the property did not converse with him on the subject; he was drinking all the time; John McEvoy took charge of my uncle, the deceased, during his last illness; John attended him in the day time and Black Tom in the night time; he often raved during his last illness; he imagined that he was sleeping in a tenement house in Essex street; he asked me at times to drink with him.

Q. Was he rational when he asked you to drink with him? A. I don't think any man who drinks constantly is rational.

Q. When he told you that he had left you a consideration in his will did you consider him rational or irrational? A. I did not consider him rational; he kept talking all the while; he told me in that and other conversations that Tom was ungrateful; he said that often during the last two or three years; when he spoke about Tom, before his sickness, he appeared to be rational; when he told me he wanted to make alterations in his will I spoke to Brady about it; I don't recollect what Brady said to me on the subject; the deceased said that he wanted to get his will back to alter it, as the folks were not using him right and he desired to be boss of his property while he lived; I had a difficulty with my uncle some years ago; I did not strike him; I choked him. (Laughter.)

Re-cross-examined—Mr. McCahill did not tell me what alterations he would like to make in the will; I don't know that I had any difficulty with Tom McCahill.

TESTIMONY OF COLONEL M'IVELY.

Colonel William McIvely testified—I have been acquainted with Bryan McCahill in his lifetime; I saw him often during four years almost daily; I saw him in liquor stores kept by Mr. Carroll and others; I saw him assisted home while he was intoxicated; had a disagreement with Mr. McCahill at one time, but became reconciled to him.

The examination was then adjourned till next Wednesday.

THE TOOMEY HOMICIDE.

NEW YORK, April 20, 1871.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In the report of the Toomey homicide in yesterday's HERALD I am made to testify that a blow over an empty stomach would be equally dangerous with one on that organ when full—a palpably erroneous opinion, for which I do not wish to be held responsible. My evidence was that it would make no material difference whether such a blow was given when the person receiving it was excited by liquor or was perfectly sober. Respectfully,

WOOSTER BEACH, M. D.

STRONGER THAN EVER—The power of Tammany.

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY completely staggered the "bulls" in the Gold Room yesterday by selling them four millions of coin.

THE SAVIORS OF TAMMANY—Tom Fields and Orrie Winans.

THE ELECTION in the District of Columbia yesterday resulted in a victory for the republicans. General Chipman was elected delegate to Congress.

AN EMPIRE OF CHARITIES—The Empire State of New York.

WEED, of the Albany Evening Journal, had a little bill for printing passed upon favorably in the State Senate yesterday, Mr. Tweed graciously consenting to do justice, he said, even to the men who abuse him. Certainly Weed didn't wheedle Tweed.

TEMPEST IN TEAPOT—The row among the country republican press on the defection of Winans.

DENNY BURNS, for a joke, proposes the impeachment of Judge Woodruff because the Judge, it is alleged, appointed a number of notorious republican roughs United States inspectors at the November election. Denny certainly cannot desire to make a precedent case of such an impeachment. It might seriously react against the shoulder-hitters and bruisers and repeaters, and possibly a judge or two or Tammany.

IMPORTANT EVENTS FOR THE REPUBLICAN PARTY—Congress has adjourned and Senator Wilson is going to Europe.

MR. WINANS has issued his letter of defence, and it will be found in another column of the HERALD. It is weak and unsatisfactory as a defence, consisting, as it does, mainly of insinuations against other republican members, and a confession of inexcusable carelessness or ignorance in reference to signing the resolutions of the caucus. Senator Fenton is vindicated, and the charge of bribery is met with the terms slander and lie, but his love for Erie is confessedly, to some extent, the influencing cause of his action. He has been employed by Erie so long and likes it so well, and thinks the present managers are such fine gentlemen, that he thought he would vote with the democrats. But he insists that he is a republican personally and goes back to his constituency as such. It now remains to be seen whether his constituency will "go back" on him or not.

The Powers at Washington and the Power of Tammany Hall—The Coming Conflict and Its Dangers to the Country.

We live in the midst of revolutionary changes and surprises. The whole civilized world is seething and bubbling with the elements of revolution—political, religious and social. We see this in the conflict at Rome between Italy and the Pope; in the signs of an impending conflict between the party of the King and the hostile factions of Spain, and we know that it is fermenting between the radical republicans and the Kaiser of Germany. We see it in the agitations between the people on the one side and the Church, the aristocracy and the State on the other, in England; we see it, in bold and lurid relief, in the bloody struggle going on between the French government at Versailles and the Commune of Paris; and we have it here in the gathering forces on each side for the coming conflict between the powers at Washington and the powers of Tammany Hall for the Presidential succession.

"We, the people of the United States," identified with the constitution as it is, have become somewhat proud, vain and egotistical in our fancied security. We are nursing the delusion that though all the world beyond the Atlantic and beyond the Pacific may be turned inside out and upside down, as by the throes of a general earthquake, we are safe against all dangers, without and within. But, looking at the political preparations for 1872 at Washington and at Albany; at the effervescence among the politicians of the West on the money question in all its phases, and at the Ku Klux doings of violence and terrorism in the South; looking at the unsettled and unsatisfied political cliques and factions throughout the country, and at the generally uneasy and apprehensive condition of the public mind touching the widespread political corruptions of the day, is not this idea of our perfect security against a violent revolutionary upheaval a delusion? In view of all these disturbing forces we are drawn to the impression that even the "Great Republic" is still an experiment, and that its sorest trials are still to come. We know not to-day what may come to the surface to-morrow. What prophet or political astrologer, then, can predict the upshot and the consequences of our next Presidential contest?

The shape which it is assuming is unquestionably alarming. First of all, the "powers that be" at Washington, including the Southern Ku Klux bill passed and approved yesterday, are armed with authority in various acts of Congress to regulate our political elections to an extent never dreamed of heretofore. The authority for these acts is broadly given in the constitution, but the experiment of exercising these powers is still new. In the Ku Klux bill, for instance, the Southern States are recognized as in a semi-insurrectionary condition, and in suppressing Ku Klux outrages the President, in his discretion, may suspend the habeas corpus and employ the army and navy of the United States. We have great faith in the discretion of General Grant; but we have very little faith in those agitating and peace-disturbing Southern carpet-baggers and fire-eaters. They may provoke a collision which will rekindle all the unsubdued secession elements of the South, and thus create such scenes of excitement, disorder and confusion in the South and North as to revive the old contest in a new and more dangerous shape than that of the rebellion, in connection with the delicate questions of our taxes and the national debt. We are warned of the game of the Southern fire-eaters, who, with Jeff Davis, still believe in the final triumph of their "lost cause;" that they expect the Northern democracy to fight their old battle over again in the political field, and we fear that the fire-eaters and carpet-baggers will raise the issue with General Grant in some startling collision on this Ku Klux bill. Our unsubdued Southern Confederacy men are not the men to stop at half-way measures in compassing their designs, and the carpet-baggers will not be slow to set them on.

These Southern Ku Klux Klans, therefore, with the full discretionary powers of military law given to General Grant, will require extremely delicate handling. Otherwise a new and perilous agitation may be raised over the length and breadth of the land. Danger to the administration is also looming up in the West on the Ku Klux, amnesty and free trade questions; and in Senators Trumbull, Logan, Carl Schurz and others, and in Gratz Brown and his factions in Missouri, we have already the nucleus of a third party, or of a new reinforcement to the democracy. Nevertheless, so strong is the general confidence in General Grant and his administration, that, in spite of all these revolutionary signs and movements at home and abroad, gold is kept to the narrow margin between 110 and 111, and our national securities are still advancing in the London market. But is this a solid foundation for General Grant and the republican party? Within the next twelve months we expect to be wiser upon this question than we are to-day. We have our misgivings of present indications; first, because of the difficulties of the national administration suggested, and, secondly, because of the stupendous and tempting financial power for party purposes gained in the new departure at Albany of Tammany Hall.

Through the party defection of a slippery republican (one of many) in our State Assembly Tammany has gained a financial power whereby she may control not only the Democratic National Convention, to a great extent, but coming elections in every otherwise doubtful or closely contested State. In giving a million of money, more or less, from year to year to the benevolent institutions of our various Churches she has gained them or shut their mouths, while in her generous laws and indulgences concerning whiskey and all the dangerous classes, she has that side of the house en masse in New York, city and State. Her power over the State, from churches to corner groceries, is complete. Next, in her unlimited bills for raising and spending money, such as the city tax levy, the Water bill, and others, she has a margin, if so inclined, of millions for Presidential purposes, and no man to call her to account. But in her affiliations with Erie and the New York Central railroads her capacities of "financial and material aid" to the democratic party of the nation are limited only to the point at which the stocks of those roads will bear no more watering. Supposing that in the aggregate Tammany can bring fifty millions of money to bear upon our coming Presidential contest, and in the manipulation of leading politicians of both parties, how—in these times of political corruption and the "almighty dollar"—how is this power to be resisted?

Suppose, in the next place, we thus secure a democratic President with the restoration to the party of its old Southern balance of power, and that the South, in compensation, upon the good old maxim that "Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," demands the repudiation of what Mr. Toombs, of Georgia, would call the Northern debt, how can this repudiation be avoided by a democratic Congress? And may not these things come to pass; for is it not a fact that even the Southern blacks—considering after the repudiation of the Southern war debt and their Confederate scrip—do not like the idea of being taxed to pay the Union war debt? To their rude sense of justice this is unfair, and they think that the Northern debt should also be wiped out. But, again, is it not a fact that Colonel John W. Forney, in 1856, through a fund of some two hundred thousand dollars, more or less, raised in this city for the purpose—by buying up certain Fillmore clubs and campaign presses in Pennsylvania in time for the October election of that year in that State—did defeat Fremont and save Buchanan, and secure his election in November? And if Forney did this thing in 1856 upon two hundred thousand dollars, where can we limit the power of Tammany, in these corrupt times, operating upon a joint stock cash basis of fifty millions? If she could and did with ease buy the other day one incorruptible Winans, may she not to-morrow buy a thousand?

The present commanding position of Tammany and New York city, however, in reference to the State and the nation is fearfully suggestive of an ultimate conflict somewhat in its political aspects like that of this day between the Commune of Paris and the provinces of France, as represented in the government at Versailles. This is the great danger to Tammany—that she may become too big for her breeches; may undertake too much as a political power, and thus combine the State and the country against her. Money is a mighty power, but great and popular ideas are more powerful than money. Upon the great idea that "God is God, and Mahomet is his prophet," that founder of a new faith, without money, went forth to lay the foundations of a great empire. From time to time, from that day to this, history supplies us with numerous examples of the resistless force of great ideas; but not one of them is more impressive than the great idea—the extinction of slavery—upon which our republican party of this day came into power. Tammany, with all her money, must have some great and popular ideas to work upon, or she will be a failure.

General Grant has, at least, one great popular idea to stand upon—an honest administration. "The tree is known by its fruit." What fruit is to come from the flourishing Tammany tree we cannot tell. It will have to pass the test of a comparison with Grant's administration; and upon this test the figures are so far in favor of Grant. But if the wiser heads of the Wigwam are permitted to rule she may, even within a year, make herself a name in New York which will give her strength from Connecticut to California. Otherwise, upon the programme of spoils and plunder, bribery, corruption, Southern rights and repudiation, she may bring confusion upon the city, State and country; but she will herself be involved, and first of all, in the general wreck and ruin.

The Democratic Address.

We publish this morning the address of the democratic Senators and Representatives in Congress to the people of the United States on the political situation. Those who expected that it would contain any reference to the last amendments to the constitution or to the reconstruction question will be disappointed. Neither does it refer directly to negro suffrage, although its declaration that the democracy intend to protect and perpetuate the rights of the humblest citizen may be construed into a recognition of the colored man's political standing, and an acquiescence in it. The principal point made in the address is that wherein it arraigns the radicals for so legislating as to establish a centralized military government. On this point the address is vigorous and decisive, and an appeal is made to the people to frustrate the designs of radicalism by restoring the States to local self-government and by limiting the powers of Congress and the President. The object and effect of the Ku Klux bill is explained at length, and the extraordinary powers granted therein to the President are characterized as not only unconstitutional but as dangerous to the liberties of the country.

On the subject of the tariff and the taxes the address charges the radicals with persistently and wilfully postponing reform on both, although the necessity for such reform is keenly felt by the overburdened masses. The financial policy of the government is assailed and the extravagance of the radical administration since the close of the war is shown in the fact that during the past five years the expenses for ordinary purposes have been nearly as great as the entire expenses of the government for seventy years prior to the outbreak of the rebellion. The system of appointment to office is sharply criticised, the address declaring that fealty to the President is made the test of capacity. Violence in the South and other parts of the country is deprecated, and an appeal is made to the people to suppress disorder and to respect the rights of all. The charge that the democratic party sympathizes with violence is indignantly denounced.

Such are the salient points of the address, which, on the whole, is more an arraignment of radicalism than a declaration of democratic policy. Excepting on the subject of radical designs on the form of our government it proposes no remedies for the evils which it refers to, and it may be that the signers of the address did not feel themselves authorized to proclaim a platform of principles and thus perform a duty which, as a matter of right belongs to the Democratic National Convention.

Progress of the War Against the Paris Communists.

Our latest despatches from Paris and Versailles are to the evening of the 19th. They tell the same story of the terrible fighting and slaughter that are going on outside of the city and of the destruction progressing within the walls. We have the truly melancholy information that the Arc de Triomphe, that monument of art with world-wide fame, has been destroyed by the fire of Fort Mont Valérien and other government batteries. The insurgent forces have sustained terrible losses in the recent engagements at Asnières and Neuilly, and many of their prominent officers have been killed or disabled. General Ducrot, with twenty thousand men of the old Imperial Guard, are on the move to the front, when they will take an active part in the operations going on. The men are reported eager for the fray. Marshal Canrobert is at Versailles and soon will be in the field at the head of his old command, which is en route from Germany. Within the city terror, death and destruction reign supreme. A shower of shells is falling in the Avenue des Ternes and over forty civilians have been killed in that important thoroughfare. The Communists are erecting barricades in the Rue Rivoli and in many other streets, and are making every preparation to defend all points on the advance of the government forces. The recent fighting has been of the most stubborn character, but numbers and discipline will prevail. The National Guards are becoming disgusted at their want of success, and the main hope for peace is upon their giving up when they see their cause hopeless, without waiting for their leaders to surrender.

The situation is growing more and more favorable to the government, and now that its forces are being so rapidly augmented we may expect more important and extended military operations at any moment. The advance of MacMahon's army will be stubbornly resisted unless panic in the ranks of the reds aids in clearing the road for it, and we think this quite possible. Constant defeat and being pushed back within their inner line of defences will probably demoralize the army of the Commune to such a degree that they may throw down their arms rather than longer submit to useless slaughter. Should this not be the case, however, we can see but little hope of saving Paris from serious injury. Much of it will be destroyed, for the besieging army is paying no respect to architecture or art. Its guns are aimed in a manner to do the most damage, and if the Tuileries or the Louvre has to be destroyed in order to defeat the rebels it will be done. The rain of shot and shell into Paris thus far is nothing to what it will be in a few days more if resistance continues. Every part of the city will be reached, and no point within it will be safe from the storm of projectiles that will be poured upon the heads of those who persist in making the city a great slaughter house. Much as we deprecate this war, opposed as we are to anarchy and bloodshed, we would not have the government cease for one moment the operations it is now carrying on. Let it make Paris a heap of ruins if necessary, let its streets be made to run rivers of blood, let all within it perish, but let the government maintain its authority and demonstrate its power. Let it crush completely every sign of opposition, no matter what the cost, and teach a lesson that Paris and all France will remember and profit by for centuries to come.

It is satisfactory to observe that the turbulent spirit of the Communists remains within Paris—that it has not spread to other cities. This gives great hope for the future of France, and it is time that Frenchmen began to understand that the prosperity of their country does not depend upon the prosperity of its gay, brilliant and immoral capital. From what has occurred since the peace with Germany we almost believe that France would be far better off were Paris blotted out of existence, its buildings and monuments destroyed, and the ground upon which it stands ploughed up and sown with salt. Agricultural and manufacturing France can well afford to let it go; they would in a short time be more prosperous without it; for all the wars, all the revolutions and all the massacres that have from time to time so crippled the country have, in a majority of cases, emanated from that great source of tumult and disorder, the city of Paris. None of the right-thinking people of the country—those who desire and aid in its prosperity—have taken a part in or countenance the revolution that is now shaking France to its centre. No, it is the adventurers, the roughs, the mob that find a home, an abiding place in Paris, that are the head and front of all the offending. They are ever ready to aid in any movement that looks to rapine, murder and pillage. They only require a few leaders of their own stripe to urge them on in order to make atrocities of all descriptions their amusement and pastime. It is such miscreants as these who are now acting with the Commune, who are the willing followers of Cluseret and his subordinates; but they are of a class who, when they find themselves foiled and their hope of plunder gone, are the first to cry "sauve qui peut," and seek safety in flight. Such will be their plan when Marshal MacMahon has them within his grip, and as this cannot much longer be delayed a cessation of hostilities and peace may come when we least expect them, and murder will then cease to be the sport of Parisians.

THE SUPPLY BILL was passed in the State Senate yesterday, with a quantity of amendments, which, being money jobs for little out of the way corporations, do not amend it at all.

THE "BULLS" AND "BEARS" in Wall street have renewed hostilities, and a terrific battle was fought between them yesterday, resulting in a triumph for the former. Seriously speaking, the activity on the Stock Exchange is really one of the features of the times, and has seldom been paralleled even in the history of Wall street. In one stock the dealings yesterday were to the extent in money value of nearly ten millions of dollars.

END OF TWO GREAT BODIES.—The adjournment of Congress and the adjournment of the Legislature. Their "spiritual essence," no doubt, will remain for some time around the two Capitols.

Adjournment of Congress—An Extra Session of the Senate.

The first session of the Forty-second Congress closed yesterday after completing the work to which it had limited itself—the passage of the Ku Klux and Deficiency bills. Both these measures have been signed by the President and are now laws. The session just closed has done little good, except negatively. The Ku Klux bill cannot be called either a wise or a necessary measure, until the experiment of general amnesty had been found incapable of securing the aims it contemplates, and a deficency bill, in the very nature of things, is an evil. The greatest good to be traced to the session just expired is the negative one of allowing the St. Domingo business to drop into oblivion.

The startling invectives which Mr. Sumner and Mr. Schurz launched against the President and the frail tenure of existence by which the republican party now hangs are the startlingly significant effects of that really insignificant measure, and the manly disavowal of any desire to enforce his policy against that of the people, which the President made in his message transmitting the arcadian report of the St. Domingo Commissioners, is the brightest point in connection with it. The first session of the Forty-second Congress, therefore, not being responsible for the introduction of that measure, deserves great praise for having extinguished it. It builded better than it knew, perhaps, for the republican party may owe many years of new life to the sagacity of its act.

The session that had been productive of little good ended in a turmoil that is bound to be productive of excessive evil. Ben Butler yesterday made his long-delayed personal explanation, which turned out to be personal toward Garrett Davis and General Farnsworth and explanatory of nothing. He drew down upon himself in consequence such invective from Farnsworth that even his thick hide winced and smarted. Then Mr. Beck, of Kentucky, as best friend for the absent Senator from that State, lashed Butler again, and in the midst of a scene in which indecorum, abuse and disorder were alone recognizable, the session was declared adjourned.

The President has issued his proclamation calling the Senate together in extra session on the 10th of May next, in order, it is understood, to take action upon the proceedings of the Joint High Commission, a report of which will probably be ready for submission by that time.

The Museum of Natural History.

About the first of May the American Museum of Natural History, which was incorporated only two years ago, but which already possesses a valuable and extensive collection, composed entirely of private contributions, will be opened to the public.

The second and third stories of the Arsenal building in Central Park have been devoted to this museum. Although the proper classification of the specimens received has not yet been made, there is such a general arrangement that the visitor may advance gradually from the study of the lowest forms of animal life to that of the higher. The entomological collection includes the North American insects contributed by the Baron Osten-Sacken, the Prussian Consul General in this city; a large number of foreign beetles, given by R. A. Witthaus, and ten thousand American and European butterflies and moths, representing three thousand species, presented by C. T. Robinson; six thousand shells from the Spice Islands, comprising some of the rarest varieties, have been given by A. S. Bickmore, and W. A. Haines, one of the trustees of the Museum, has presented four thousand shells from different parts of the world. Among the foreign contributions is a complete series of the minerals of the Island of Formosa, together with specimens of the various woods found there. There is also a fine assortment of Florida corals. The entire collection of Prince Maximilian, of Neuwied, who went to Brazil in 1815, and spent three years in scientific explorations, has been fortunately obtained for the Museum, containing four thousand mounted specimens of South American birds, and two thousand fishes and reptiles, mounted and in alcohol. On the third floor the collection of North American birds, purchased from Dr. G. Elliott, and comprising three thousand specimens, is exhibited, together with selections from the collection of the celebrated Paris taxidermist, the late M. Verreaux, numbering two thousand eight hundred birds, two hundred and twenty mammals, and four hundred mounted skeletons of mammals, birds, reptiles and fishes. The group of animals mounted by M. Verreaux for the Paris Exposition, at which it won a gold medal as an exquisite specimen of the taxidermist's art, is also on exhibition. Among the ornithological specimens a great many North and South American humming birds and numerous eagles, pheasants and parrots are conspicuous. The value of the entire collection is estimated at one hundred thousand dollars. An act of the Legislature requires that the best specimens of natural history shall be selected from all duplicates belonging to the State and presented to the Museum.

"It is now intended," says the Evening Post, which gave Wednesday evening a detailed account of this museum, "to begin early next autumn upon Manhattan square the erection of the permanent building for the Museum of Natural History and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, which the Department of Public Parks was recently authorized to construct, at an aggregate cost not exceeding $500,000 for each. The trustees of the Museum of Natural History design it to equal, if not surpass, any similar institution in the world." The Post adds that when John Edward Gray, Superintendent of the Zoological Department of the British Museum was informed of the collections already secured by the American Museum of Natural History, he is said to have told one of its trustees, then in London, that more had been accomplished by it already than by the British Museum in the same department during the first fifteen years of its existence. This impartial testimony is highly encouraging as to the success of our new Museum of Natural History. If the movement initiated in favor of the introduction of the study of natural history in our public schools is encouraged, as it ought to be, this museum will prove to be of inestimable value to the rising generation in New York.

Explanations in Congress—Ben Butler's Bombshell.

Ben Butler, after a weary vigil of several days, against which his mighty spirit chafed as might a lion brought to bay, and bothered how to manage it, yesterday got a chance to sail in his second powder ship, in the shape of a personal explanation intended to blow up Fort Davis, Fort Farnsworth and all rebeldom besides. There was an immense explosion. It shook the foundations of the Kentucky Commonwealth and is supposed to have knocked the silver-topped Senator, the garrulous, but game little Garrett, higher than the traditional kite of Ben Franklin. As for the King Lear of Illinois, the desolate patriarch of the Post Office Committee, the fiery Farnsworth, he still lives in defiance of fate. Ben's first patent powder boat was a failure. It carried plenty of detonating and destroying material, enough, in fact, to blow a fair margin off the moon if it had been near enough, but it missed its mark and hurt nobody. Not so with this second venture. The fuse was in order, and the fury of the explosion has not been wasted on the desert air. It was all moonshine to suppose the same fertile intellect that tempted Blaine to precipitate himself in incautious debate upon the floor would have failed to pay off the latest aggression on the sun-dyed fame of the Essex statesman. Garrett Davis is not a man to be despised, even though his aggregate physical bulk might be passed through an ordinary pane of glass in a cottage window; but when Garrett fell foul of Ben Butler's extraordinary optics, and put on airs to the extent of exclaiming, "You d—d scoundrel! why do you look at me?" he ran counter to all preconceived notions concerning the independent exercise of morial vision, forgetting even that pussy cat has had immemorial license to look at the king.

Why Ben looked as he did at Garrett has never been properly explained; but what Garrett saw in Ben's looks is known only to the soul of the Senator from Kentucky. That he must have observed something "mortal never saw nor dreamed before" is tolerably certain; for sure it is no such outburst of wrath, piled high and fierce, would have been provoked by any one short of the Old Harry himself. Yet the worst result of that terrible vision was not the torrent of invective, strong and fiery as it was, that issued from the lips of the Kentucky Senator when he first caught the cork-screw gaze of Butler boring into his very vitals. The thing haunted him in his waking and sleeping hours. He read the HERALD in the meantime for solace and enlightenment, and there he found this greatest optical encounter of the age fully and graphically reported. He next offered a few words of explanation in the Senate based on the HERALD'S report, but though Butler was no longer there he saw him in his mind's eye, and saw the same vision glaring at him as before. Then it was that the irate Senator uttered an opinion concerning the owner of those marvellous optics that called up the personal explanation of yesterday, which we print in full to-day. It is a remarkable story, like most of the personal explanations nowadays, and after disposing of one man it is stretched out to take in another; so that what was ostensibly hurled at hapless Kentucky in the person of her Senator sent a splinter in the direction of the member from Illinois, which was designed to knock him "outside the pale of civilized warfare." The explanation says, substantially, that, assuming Mr. Davis' own description of the visual delusion and confusion in the Senate to be true, the candid judgment of all just men would be that Ben was no blackguard and Garrett no gentleman. Personal explanations, like personal comparisons, are odious. What are intended for explanations are made vehicles of abuse and defamation, and few of late years have ever been offered without containing what calls for an explanation from somebody else, and then the Original Jacobs feels bound "to explain his explanation." The business has grown to be a bore of the largest magnitude. It interferes with legislation and is eminently wearisome to all but the persons immediately interested.

The method our public men in Congress have of tearing each other's characters to tatters and leaving wondering constituencies to marvel how they could ever have trusted such rascals to represent them is unique in its way. The disinterested public know but little of the elaborate and ingenious dodges to which one honorable member will resort to scrape together and pile up patiently all sorts of charges—as the busy bee collects and arranges the materials of her waxen cell—to square accounts with another honorable member of Congress. Since the days of Donnelly, of Minnesota, personal explanations, for the most part, without losing anything of intrinsic coarseness, have undergone a sort of elaborate and artistic preparation which no longer entitles them to the name. Donnelly, in his fierce, coarse, cavalry onslaught on Washburne, made no preparation, but trusted to a certain wild genius for invective to demolish his victim, while he shocked and astounded the country. Nowadays a member pursues a different course of action. He has a deep and bitter grudge to satisfy, and gives nothing for the mere thunderbolts of denunciation. He addresses himself to the secret and silent discovery of every atom of a doubtful and disreputable nature in the private and political career of his enemy. He employs detectives to scent out the frailties of the man he marks for destruction. His private haunts and habits are minutely noted down. One fact gleaned here, another there, and a network of nasty charges brought together in the end. "Now sir, I have got you," he will intimate. "I know all the big and little jobs you have had your fingers in—that land grant to build a railroad from Buncombe Point to Bummer's Run—that claim for wooden hams and marble dust flour supplied our gentle wards, the Indians—that little job of Mrs. Lobbylips for a pension she never had a right to get. Yes, sir, and more. I have a bundle of your private letters and telegrams that would damn you to everlasting infamy if they were given to the public gaze. More, too. You know you have a wife; but I hold in my possession the facts; yes, sir, the witnesses, ay, the waiters and bootblacks of a certain hotel can prove that you, in propria persona, passed yourself off as the affianced of another. Now, sir, if you charge me with corrupt motives in Congress recollect the consequences, and beware!" Here is the sword of Damocles hanging in terrorem over the Honorable John Jones, while he, in turn, has something equally sharp and suggestive suspended above the character of the Honorable John Smith. He gives Smith to understand that he knows more about him than all the world and his mother and grandmother know besides. "I have the facts, Smith—facts that if I thought fit to publish would drive you from decent society and make you a hissing and a byword throughout the land." Now, it should be understood that Jones has adopted just as keen a detective surveillance over the dark ways of Smith as the latter has over Jones, and that a mighty fine line should be drawn between both to discover which has an iota of moral advantage over the other. "Yes, sir; I can prove—and you are a married man—your deception of a certain gay and fascinating widow. I can go further. I can show how the product of that illegal connection was spirited, the Lord only knows where, and before the world you stand convicted of being a ——"

And when Smith and Jones come to close quarters the country is flundersmack to find what an amazing history of corruption each one has of the other. In the mêlée yesterday this was partly illustrated; but there were debates in the past where the very thing we have instanced almost literally occurred.

A Season of Italian Opera at the Academy.

We have been spared the humiliation of having an entire season pass by at the Academy of Music without Italian opera. Signor Albites steps in at the eleventh hour and announces a few nights of the longed-for entertainment with a select company, mostly from Havana, and two sterling favorites—Miss Kellogg and Madame States. The season begins on that memorable day of all days in the year to housekeepers, the first of May, and it will last about three weeks. Signor Albites, indeed, deserves the thanks of the musical public for this timely relief; for a feeling of despair had taken possession of all that Italian opera was a luxury unattainable this season, and we took up our London exchanges with a sigh of envy that perfidious Albion should have all the music and we none. There are good materials in the company. Of Miss Kellogg and Madame States it is unnecessary to speak, as they are well and favorably known to the metropolitan public. The tenor, Villani, brings with him a very high reputation, and the contralto, Laura Himels, made her mark long ago in Milan. There are besides Signora Frederici (not Mme. Hammer, of the German Opera), Caroselli, Orlandini, Albert Lawrence, Reyna and Susini. The initial opera will be "Poliuto," and will be followed by "The Sicilian Vespers," "Martha," "Faust," "Un Ballo en Maschera," "Rigoletto," "Don Giovanni," "Robert," "Crispino" and "Ernani." It will be seen from the above list that the bill will be changed every night, as the season is limited to ten performances. So much for what we have actually before us. Now a few words on what we can have permanently, if the directors of the Academy will only listen to reason. It appears that if we are to have the rare treat of hearing Nilsson in opera at the legitimate opera house of New York the stockholders must make up their minds to descend to the level of true business men and relinquish some of their lofty pretensions. It is by no means creditable to a number of gentlemen occupying the foremost places in metropolitan society to lend themselves to a system of management by which they occupy the unenviable position of "deadheads," rent out to various parties the privilege of selling librettos, flowers, cigars and bibulous stimulants, and throw every obstacle in the path of an impresario instead of assisting him. Why, the stockholders of the Drury Lane theatre in London, when Mapleson applied to them after the burning of Her Majesty's, were really princely in their offers of assistance, and made all reasonable concessions. The same may be said of other theatres in the same city. Our stockholders should be content with realizing a fair interest on their outlay of capital; nay, to help opera along, even if the finances of the manager should not be adequate to the expenses. The rapid and constant increase in the value of the Academy, in a real estate point of view, should be sufficient compensation to them for the present. They owe it as a duty to the public, to art and to themselves to make Italian opera an institution in the very house built expressly for it. By their obstinacy they kill lyric art effectually in this city, for no one is willing to build another opera house or give Italian opera at one of the dramatic establishments while the Academy is in existence. As we have repeatedly remarked, the matter rests with the stockholders. Let them give up their seats, or, if they will retain them, let them pay for them. Then the small Chatham street business of renting out such privileges as we have mentioned should be abandoned. It appears that the most difficult point with these gentlemen is the right to occupy their two hundred and fifty seats. They will not, they say, surrender this right under any consideration. Well, then, why not pay for it? The manager can have no objection to this right, so long as he receives full compensation for the boxes occupied by those gentlemen. The question is a plain one, and it rests with the stockholders to settle it. We are sure that they will not refuse the public next season a chance to hear one of the greatest lyric artistes of the present age.

Senator Sumner, St. Domingo and the Massachusetts Legislature.

The Massachusetts Legislature seems to have been placed in an awkward dilemma by the introduction of a resolution commending the course of Senator Sumner on the St. Domingo question. It had a divided duty to perform; first to its "honored Senator," and next to the administration, and evidently was embarrassed as to how it could solve the difficulty. The resolution, which was referred to the Joint Legislative Committee on Federal Relations, heartily approved the conduct of Mr. Sumner in opposing the annexation of St. Domingo, as involving injury and misfortune to a weak neighboring republic; possibility of war and bloodshed; the joining to us of an undesirable, ignorant and debauched population; an addition to our great national debt, and increased burdens of taxation, denouncing at the same time the attacks made on Senator Sumner for fearlessly doing his duty. The committee being desirous to save the administration and its friends from the odium and other consequences of the implied censure in this resolution report back another tenderly worded white-washing one. This speaks favorably of annexation as a general policy, and of the course pursued by the administration with regard to St. Domingo, without saying in plain terms that the Legislature wishes St. Domingo to be annexed. Nor is there a word of blame in it of Senator Sumner's course in denouncing the St. Domingo annexation scheme. The radical Legislature of Massachusetts could not afford to condemn either its "honored Senator" or its own party government at Washington. We give these New England politicians credit for wriggling out of the dilemma so adroitly.

A United Service Club.

It is a matter of surprise that long ere this no military and naval social rendezvous has existed in this city. In all of the metropolitan cities of Europe not only one but many clubs are well sustained, whose membership is composed of officers and ex-officers of the various arms of the service, while here in New York, with its million of population and thousands of gentlemen who, during the past decade, have been actively connected with one or other branch of our service, no club accommodations have been provided. It is true that officers are admitted into our clubs upon liberal terms, but even this courtesy does not fill the blank occasioned by there being no place which can distinctly be called their own. It is with satisfaction, therefore, that we chronicle the fact that an active movement is on foot for the establishment of a United Service Club, and now that the initiative has been taken it is believed that a success will be the result.

The club is to be composed of officers from all branches of the service, the only requisite to candidature being that the applicant is or has been in the service of the government either as an officer of one or other of the arms of the regular service, as a volunteer or as a National Guard officer from this or some other State. It is designed that the United Service Club shall be a most desirable social institution, both as regards its moderate per capita expense and the accommodations and privileges found within its walls. Its objects are to bring into daily intercourse those whose friendships were first begun on the tented field and to afford to the many regular officers stationed in and about this city, as well as those visiting us, a place of rendezvous, where they can find the best of bodily comforts at a minimum cost and the most congenial associates without the necessity of hunting the town to discover their whereabouts. The initiation fee is fixed at fifty dollars, and the annual dues at thirty dollars, these latter to be remitted when an officer is ordered to a distant station. A suitable club house is being secured, and a number of sleeping rooms will be fitted up for the use of visiting members or others who may desire to make use of them. We have no doubt that the United Service Club will, in due time, become a most popular institution with those for whom it is intended.

TURKEY.

The Sultan's Armament in the Black Sea.

Imperial Vindication of the Work of the London Conference—The Naval Rights Under the Treaty of Paris of 1856.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

LONDON, April 20, 1871.

The London Post, good newspaper authority on all matters relating to Eastern affairs, has received a special telegram from Constantinople which conveys the very important intelligence that the Porte government, acting with the full approbation of the Sultan, intends to despatch a large iron-clad fleet to the Black Sea, the vessels being commissioned to cruise in the waters until further orders.

This statement, taken as a fact, is commented on extensively in the clubs and even in the higher Parliamentary circles.

It is said by some that the Sultan is just now anxious, for grave diplomatic reasons, to assert his naval right under the Treaty of Paris of 1856 as it was enlarged and extended by the London Conference of the present year, with respect to the navigation of the Black Sea by armed vessels of war.

With regard to the amount of naval forces which Russia and Turkey may respectively keep in the Black Sea it was agreed in a separate convention between those two Powers in 1856, as follows:—

ARTICLE 1. The high contracting parties mutually engage not to have in the Black Sea any other vessels of war than those of which the number, the force and the dimensions are hereinafter stipulated.

ART. 2. The high contracting parties reserve to themselves each to maintain in that sea six steam vessels of fifty metres in length at the time of flotation, of a tonnage of 800 tons at the maximum, and four light steam or sailing vessels of a tonnage which shall not exceed 200 tons each.

It is also alleged here to-day that Russia will not approve by any means of the movement of Turkey, but that the Czar cannot object to it, in accordance with the spirit of Prince Gortchakoff's circular to the Austrian government, dated at Tsarskoe-Selo in November of 1870, even independent of the binding action of the London Conference.

Prince Gortchakoff, in this remarkable note, said:—

The Europe of to-day is no longer the Europe that signed the Treaty of 1856. The political conditions under which this transaction was concluded are radically altered. Surely it is not Russia who can be accused of striking at the respect which is due to right. For forty years she has been the staunchest supporter of it in Europe, even to the detriment of her own interests. If this principle has been weakened by the course of events the responsibility for it cannot fall upon her. But when the most solemn treaties have been annihilated before her eyes, when the value of European guarantees is nullified by the very Cabinets which have tendered them, when to preserve some efficacy they must be renewed according to the circumstances of the time being, then it is impossible that Russia alone should be bound absolutely to respect a principle which has ceased to prevail in political transactions, and, above all, that she should make her material safety depend upon it. As regards the particular infringements to which the Treaty of 1856 has been subjected, Count Beust will allow me not to take into account the objection to the effect that the principalities of Moldavia and Wallachia were not signatories to that transaction. These provinces, bound to the Porte as vassals, could not be contracting parties to transactions concluded between great Powers. They remained strangers to them and could not be rendered responsible for violations for which they were a pretext, while accomplishing internal revolutions in accordance with their local passions. The infringement precisely lies in the fact that the great Powers, assembled in conference, after having uselessly given judgment in reprobation of accomplished facts, have at last tolerated and recognized them, though they were opposed to the spirit as well as to the letter of the treaty, and though the Russian Plenipotentiary called attention to the fact that this toleration placed him in positive opposition to the stipulations of that treaty. This infringement not only invalidated the general idea of right, but it tended by its consequences to modify the situation of the basin of the Black Sea.

THE ARC DE TRIOMPHE DESTROYED.

A COMMUNAL MANIFESTO.

Compromise With the Versailles Government Impossible.

TELEGRAMS TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

PARIS, Wednesday Evening, April 19, 1871.

The taking of Asnières by the Versailles forces was accomplished by a stratagem and not by a direct assault. The troops of the line simulating friendship for and fraternization with the insurgents were permitted to advance unopposed. They were thus enabled to pass the outposts of the Communists without difficulty, and once within the rebel line the result was no longer doubtful. The fighting in Asnières, however, was sharp. Nearly all the buildings in the town were destroyed.

MORE BARRICADES.

The Communists are busy erecting barricades in the Rue Rivoli and in many other streets.

AN ENGAGEMENT.

At half-past two o'clock this (Wednesday) afternoon an engagement began along the whole line. General Dombrowski reports that the agents of the Versailles government assassinated many of the National Guards and that the police agents stripped the dead Communists on the battle field. He also reports that the attempted surprise of the insurgents at the Asnières outposts by a trick on the part of the Versailles troops was discovered and that the enraged National Guards drove back the Versaillists.

ANOTHER POSITION OCCUPIED.

General Dombrowski reports that the Communists are masters of Ile Grande, where they are erecting batteries for the purpose of preventing the Versailles forces commanding the Ile.

COMMUNISTS SUCCESSFUL.

The Communists have retaken the positions lost by them on Monday and captured sixty-nine tons of provisions. The fighting continues at the present writing, and it is bloody in the extreme. The right wing of the insurgent army is executing a strategic movement with a view to enveloping the Versailles troops, who have advanced too far.

A STRANGE SPECTACLE.

Levallois has been gutted and sacked. The streets of Asnières are full of dresses, chignons, furniture and other articles, and, altogether, present a strange spectacle. The National Guards are sheltered behind the houses, supported by the iron-clad cars and fixed batteries.

DESTRUCTION OF THE ARC DE TRIOMPHE.

At twenty-five minutes past five o'clock this evening Fort Mont Valérien and the government batteries at Courbevoie were shelling Paris at a frightful rate. I left the scene at the moment the famous Arc de Triomphe fell. The Arc was blown up at a little after five o'clock. It had already been badly damaged by the fire from Fort Valérien. The scene of the ruins is a most melancholy one.

A SHOWER OF SHELLS.

As I write a shower of shells is falling into Avenue des Ternes. About forty civilians have already been killed in the avenue.

THE INSURGENTS DISGUSTED.

Notwithstanding General Dombrowski repeats his reports of victory gained by the insurgents, the National Guards are returning to Paris dispirited and disgusted. The slaughter among them has been awful. General Dombrowski complains of the inefficiency of their officers. The Chief of Staff, Nohart, has been arrested by order of General Cluseret.

OPERATIONS TO BE RESUMED.

The American mitrailleuses, which have thus far done the insurgents good service, have moved to the front. General Dombrowski states that he is waiting for the co-operation of the gunboats to resume active operations, but it is not believed that these will be ready within four days.

A FRIGHTFUL EXPLOSION.

The Communists are running from the houses in Asnières, many of which are now held by the Versailles troops. To-day a frightful explosion took place near the church at Asnières, completely destroying the sacred edifice. No lives were lost, as the church contained neither party.

A Communal Manifesto—Compromise Impossible—Insurgent Success—A Successful Defence—The Commune to Retire—Fighting on Wednesday.

PARIS, April 20, 1871.

The Commune have just issued a manifesto, saying:—

"Paris, once more laboring and suffering for the regeneration of France, demands local autonomy and the encouragement of producers. She does notaim at dictatorship. She desires the decentralized unity of the country."

The document pronounces compromise with the Versailles government impossible, and closes with an appeal to France to disarm troops now threatening the capital.

INSURGENT SUCCESS.

General Dombrowski reports to the Commune that his troops have retaken certain positions, capturing a considerable quantity of provisions and some prisoners. He adds that the battle continues and asks for reinforcements.

A SUCCESSFUL DEFENCE.

General Okolowitz maintains his position at Asnières against all the efforts of the government forces.

THE COMMUNE TO RETIRE.

The Commune retires from office and new elections are to be held at once.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS.

The Mot d'Ordre condemns the Commune for its suppression of various journals.

FIGHTING ON WEDNESDAY.

There was a cannonade, mingled with the fire of mitrailleuses and musketry, all day yesterday at Courbevoie, Porte Maillot, Preteaux, Asnières and Levallois. The iron-clad railroad vans are operating actively.

A DENIAL.

The Revell (newspaper) denies that the Versailles forces are masters of the bridge crossing the Seine from Asnières to Clichy. The concentration of troops for the Army of the Assembly continues.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF VICTORY.

A circular issued by President Thiers announcing the capture of Asnières asserts that it is the key to Courbevoie. M. Thiers also says that the insurgent losses in the fight at Asnières were very heavy, and adds that the end of criminal resistance to the government is approaching.

CANROBERT IN COMMAND.

Marshal Canrobert is here, and the men of the imperial army who served under his command up to the time of their surrender as prisoners of war are on the way to Versailles.

GUNS CAPTURED.

Two guns were captured by the Versailles troops in the battle at Asnières on the 17th.

THE WAR INDEMNITY.

It is rumored that arrangements have now been made by which the government is enabled to pay to Germany at once the five hundred million francs indemnity due under the preliminary treaty of peace on the 1st instant.

The story that England has asked Prussia to intervene between the French government and the Paris insurgents is untrue.

RADICALISM ARRAIGNED.

Address of Democratic Congressmen to the People of the United States.

Attempt of the Radicals to Establish a Centralized Military Government.

Dictatorial Powers Conferred on the President.

Reforms in the Tariff and Taxation Persistently Postponed.

Personal Fealty to Grant the Test of Officeholding.

The Democracy Do Not Sympathize with Violence.

All Rights of Citizens to Be Protected and Perpetuated.

Appeal to the Conservative Men of All Parties.

WASHINGTON, April 20, 1871.

The democrats in Congress have just issued the following address:—

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES:—

Our presence and official duties at Washington have enabled us to become fully acquainted with the actions and designs of those who control the radical party, and we feel called upon to utter a few words of warning against the alarming strides they have made towards the centralization of power in the hands of Congress and the Executive. The time and attention of the radical leaders have been almost wholly directed to devising such legislation as will, in their view, best preserve their ascendancy, and no regard for the wise restraints imposed by the constitution has checked their reckless and desperate career.

DICTATORIAL POWERS CONFERRED ON THE PRESIDENT.

The President of the United States has been formally announced as a candidate for re-election. The declarations of his selfish supporters have been echoed by a subsidized press, and the discipline of party has already made adhesion to his personal fortunes the supreme test of political fealty. The partisan legislation to which we refer was decreed and shaped in secret caucus, where the extremest counsels always dominated, and was adopted by a subservient majority, if not with the intent, certainly with the effect, to place in the hands of the President power to command his own renomination and to employ the army, navy and militia, at his sole discretion, as a means of subserving his personal ambition. When the sad experience of the last two years, so disappointing to the hopes and generous confidence of the country, is considered, in connection with the violent utterances and harsh purposes of those who control the President's policy, it is not surprising that the gravest apprehensions for the future peace of the nation should be entertained.

PARTISANSHIP THE TEST.

At a time when labor is depressed and every material interest is palsied by oppressive taxation, the public offices have been multiplied beyond all precedent to serve as instruments in the perpetuation of power, partisanship is the only test applied to the distribution of this vast patronage. Honesty, fitness and moral worth are openly discarded in favor of truckling submission and dishonorable compliance; hence enormous defalcations and widespread corruption have followed as the natural consequences of this pernicious system. By the official report of the Secretary of the Treasury it appears that after the deduction of all proper credits many millions of dollars remain due from ex-collectors of the internal revenue, and that no proper diligence has ever been used to collect them.

REFORMS PERSISTENTLY POSTPONED.

Reforms in the revenue and fiscal systems, which all experiences demonstrate to be necessary to a frugal administration of the government, as well as measures of relief to an overburdened people, have been persistently postponed or wilfully neglected. Congress now adjourns without even having attempted to reduce taxation or to repeal the glaring impositions by which industry is crushed and impoverished. The Treasury is overflowing, and an excess of eighty million dollars of revenue is admitted; and yet, instead of some measure of present relief, a barren and delusive resolution is passed by the Senate to consider the tariff and excise systems hereafter, as if the history of broken pledges and pretended remedies furnished any better assurance for future legislation than experience has done in the past.

OPPRESSIVE TARIFF AND TAXATION.

Shipbuilding and the carrying trade, once sources of national pride and prosperity, now languish under a crushing load of taxation, and nearly every other business interest is struggling without profit to maintain itself.

Our agriculturalists, while paying heavy taxes on all they consume, either to the government or to monopolists, find the prices for their own products so reduced that honest labor is denied its just reward, and industry is prostrated by invidious discrimination.

THE PUBLIC LANDS GIVEN TO MONOPOLIES.

Nearly two hundred millions of acres of public lands which should have been reserved for the benefit of the people have been voted away to giant corporations—neglecting our soldiers and enriching a handful of greedy speculators and lobbyists, who are thereby enabled to exercise a most dangerous and corrupting influence over State and federal legislation.

THE REPUBLIC IN DANGER—DANGERS FROM THE KU KLUX BILL.

If the career of these conspirators be not checked the downfall of free government is inevitable, and with it the elevation of a military dictator on the ruins of the republic. Under pretence of passing laws to enforce the fourteenth amendment, and for other purposes, Congress has conferred the most despotic powers upon the Executive, and provided an official machinery by which the liberties of the people are menaced and the sacred right of local self-government in the States is ignored, if not tyrannically overthrown. Modelled up to the sedition laws, so odious in history, they are at variance with all the sanctified theories of our institutions. And the construction given by these radical interpreters to the fourteenth amendment is, to use the language of a prominent Senator, Mr. Trumbull, of Illinois, an "annihilator of States." Under the last enforcement bill "the Executive may, in his discretion, thrust aside the government of any State, suspend the writ of habeas corpus, arrest its Governor, imprison or disperse the Legislature, silence its judges and trample down its people under the armed heel of its troops. Nothing is left to the citizen or the State which can any longer be called a right; all is changed into mere sufferance.

THE PEOPLE APPEALED TO.

Our hopes for redress are in the calm good sense, the "sober second thought" of the American people. We call upon them to be true to themselves and to their past, and, disregarding party names and minor differences, to insist upon a decent equalization of power, the restriction of federal authority within its just and proper limits, leaving to the States that control over domestic affairs which is essential to their happiness and tranquillity and good government. Everything that malicious ingenuity could suggest has been done to irritate the people of the Middle and Southern States; gross and exaggerated charges of disorder and violence owe their origin to the mischievous minds of political managers in the Senate and House of Representatives, to which the Executive has, we regret to say, lent his aid, and thus helped to inflame the popular feeling. In all this course of hostile legislation and harsh recriminations no word of conciliation, of kind encouragement, of fraternal fellowship has ever been spoken by the President or by Congress to the people of the Southern States. They have been addressed only in the language of proscription.

VIOLENCE DEPRECATED.

We earnestly entreat our fellow citizens in all parts of the Union to spare no effort to maintain peace and order, to carefully protect the rights of every citizen, to preserve kindly relations among all men and to discountenance and discourage any violations of the rights of any portion of the people secured under the constitution or any of its amendments. Let us, in conclusion, earnestly beg of you not to aid the present attempts of radical partisans to stir up strife in the land, to review the issues of the war or to obstruct the return of peace and prosperity to the Southern States, because it is thus that they seek to divert the attention of the country from the corruption and extravagance of their administration of public affairs, and the dangerous and profligate attempts they are making towards the creation of centralized military governments.

RADICAL EXTRAVAGANCE.

In the five years of peace following the war the radical administrations have expended $1,220,000,000 for ordinary purposes alone, being within $200,000,000 of the aggregate amount spent for the same purpose in war and in peace during the seventy-one years preceding June 30, 1861, not including, in either case, the sum paid upon principal or interest of the public debt. It is trifling with the intelligence of the people for the radical leaders to pretend that this vast sum has been honestly expended. Hundreds of millions of it have been wantonly squandered. The expenditures of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1861, were only $62,000,000, while for precisely the same purposes—civil list, army, navy, pensions and Indians—$154,000,000 were expended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1870.

NO SYMPATHY WITH VIOLENCE.

No indignation can be too stern and no scorn too severe for the assertions by unscrupulous radical leaders that the great democratic and conservative party of the Union has or can have sympathy with disorders or violence in any part of the country, or in the deprivation of any man of his rights under the constitution.

RIGHTS TO BE PROTECTED AND PERPETUATED.

It is to protect and perpetuate the rights which every freeman cherishes, to revive in all hearts the feeling of friendship, affection and harmony, which are the best guarantees of law and order, and to throw around the humblest citizen, wherever he may be, the protecting ægis of these safeguards of personal liberty which the fundamental laws of the land assure, that we invoke the aid of all good men in the work of peace and reconciliation; we invite their generous co-operation, irrespective of all former differences of opinion, so that the harsh voice of discord may be relieved; that a new and dangerous sectional agitation may be checked; that the burdens of taxation, direct or indirect, may be reduced to the lowest point consistent with good faith to every just national obligation and with a strictly economical administration of the government, and that the States may be restored in their integrity and true relations to our federal Union.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WALL STREET,
THURSDAY, April 20—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat was dull and became heavy, undergoing a slight decline toward the close. Cotton was quiet and about steady.

MONEY FIVE TO SEVEN PER CENT.

The money market was easy at seven per cent during the earlier part of the day, and becoming abundantly supplied late in the day, owing to the disbursements of the Sub-Treasury for the five-twenties bought yesterday, the rate on call descended to six per cent on stocks and five per cent on governments, with more offering at the same figures. Had not bank accounts been generally made up promptly in the afternoon the desire to place balances might have led to still lower rates.

Commercial paper was unchanged.

Foreign exchange was steady, but with the decline in gold promises to be more active. Rates were 109¾ a 110 for prime bankers' sixty day sterling and 110¼ a 110½ for sight bills.

THE NEW LOAN.

The additional subscriptions to the new loan reported at the Treasury Department to-day amounted to $250,000, making the total subscriptions to date $60,426,750.

THE TREASURY SELLS FOUR MILLIONS GOLD.

Owing to the excitement attending the bull speculation in the Gold Room there was a large gathering of brokers at the Sub-Treasury at noon to listen to the reading of the proposals for the two millions of gold offered for sale by the government. The bids proved to be twenty-six in number for a total of $8,935,000 at prices ranging from 111.02 to 111.63¼, the latter figure being bid by one house for the entire two millions. This competition sent the crowd running back to the Gold Room and delighted the bulls, who began buying on the theory that the award of the whole amount to the bidder at 111.63¼ would assist their operations.

GOLD EXCITED—111⅜ A 111¾ A 111.

Gold, which had opened at 111⅜ and had sold alternately at 111⅜ and 111½, hereupon advanced to 111¾, and remained at that figure until soon after one o'clock, when the announcement was made that the Secretary of the Treasury, to whom the bids had been telegraphed, had sent back orders to sell four millions of gold, or twice the amount advertised, his right to do so being explicitly stated in the reservation contained in the official programme authorizing an acceptance of a larger or smaller amount, as he saw fit. This emphatic expression of his determination to check a rising speculation in gold staggered the "bulls," who, in their fright, poured their load upon the market until the price had gone down to 111, when the "bears," thinking it a good time to cover, began buying and occasioned a reaction to 111⅛, from which the market again went off to 111, closing finally at 111⅛ a 111¼. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	111⅜	1:15 P. M.	111⅜
11 A. M.	111½	1:36 P. M.	111
12 M.	111½	1:40 P. M.	111⅛
12:2 P. M.	111⅜	2 P. M.	111⅛
12:15 P. M.	111⅜	2:34 P. M.	111
1 P. M.	111⅛	3 P. M.	111⅛

In the gold loan market the rates ranged from flat to 1-64 for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$62,193,000
Gold balances	2,466,949
Currency balances	2,825,620

The European steamers took out $414,000 in specie.

GOVERNMENTS STRONG AND HIGHER.

The government list naturally sympathized with the advance in gold, and when the latter was selling at 111¾ the '62's were 113⅝ and the '67's 113, the highest figures this year. On the subsequent fall in gold the market yielded, but not to the same extent, the easier feeling in money now contributing a new source of strength. The market closed firm, with the following street quotations:—United States currency sixes, 115 a 115¼; do. sixes, 1881, registered, 116⅞ a 116⅞; do. do., coupon, 116⅞ a 116⅞; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 110⅞ a 110⅞; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 113⅜ a 113⅝; do. do., 1864, do. do., 113⅜ a 113⅝; do. do., 1865, do. do., 113⅜ a 113⅝; do. do., registered, January and July, 112⅞ a 112⅞; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 112⅞ a 112⅞; do. do., 1867, do. do., 112⅞ a 112⅞; do. do. 1868, do. do., 112⅞ a 113; do. ten-forties, registered, 108⅞ a 109; do. do., coupon, 109⅞ a 109⅞.

STOCKS ACTIVE AND RAMPANT.

The stock market opened strong and buoyant, and upon the discovery that the Secretary of the Treasury had ordered the sale of four millions of gold became active and rampant. The transactions were on a scale of magnitude exceeding anything up to the present time this season, and were attended by the utmost excitement. The chief feature was again Lake Shore, which, in the hands of the Vanderbilt clique, whose operations in the market are simply gigantic, ran up to 109⅝. The action of the Secretary of the Treasury also stimulated the numerous other cliques and revived the faltering courage of the outsiders, leading to an advance in Northwest to 91⅞, in Northwest preferred to 100⅜, in New York Central stock to 100, in New York Central scrip to 96⅞, in Wabash to 63⅞, in Rock Island to 113⅞, in Hannibal and St. Joseph to 98, and in Hannibal and St. Joseph preferred to 105⅜. The Stock Exchange Committee, having received assurances that the new $3,000,000 of Erie stock would not be registered for thirty days, voted to suspend the law of the Board in the matter, and Erie remained quiet and steady. The following table will show the extreme fluctuations in the principal stocks:—

SOUTHERN SECURITIES STRONG.

The Southern list was strong, with quite a reaction in the South Carolinas. It seems that the Charleston patriots who went short of their State's obligations, and then got up a mass meeting to oppose taxation, have reconsidered their intention, and are now speculating for a rise in the bonds. The Missouris also strongly reacted. The following were the closing street prices:—Tennessee ex coupon, 66⅛ a 66⅞; do., new, 66⅜ a 66½; Virginia, ex coupon, 71⅜ a 72; do. new, 72⅞ a 73; do., registered stock, old, 55 a 56⅞; Georgia sixes, 82 a 85; do. sevens, 89⅞ a 91; do. sevens, old, 92 a 100; North Carolina, ex coupon, 48⅞ a 49; do., funding, 1866, 38 a 40; do. do., 1868, 30 a 31; do., new, 25 a 26⅞; do. special tax, 18⅞ a 20; Missouri sixes, 93⅞ a 93⅞; do. ACADEMY OF MUSIC—ITALIAN OPERA.
SPRING SEASON OF TEN SUBSCRIPTION NIGHTS,
COMMENCING MONDAY, MAY 1.
Mr. L. ALBITES has the honor to announce that he has succeeded in making arrangements by which he has effected a combination of artists of the highest talent and reputation for a short and brilliant season of GRAND ITALIAN OPERA.
Mr. ALBITES thinks that it is unnecessary in this announcement to indulge in statements and promises indiscriminate in their character with the sole view of exciting public curiosity, which would only result in disappointment; he would simply say that, aided by his long experience in connection with operatic matters, and encouraged by the stockholders of the Academy of Music and the patrons of Italian Opera, combined with the earnest desire manifested for the revival of the Lyric Drama, he flatters himself that he will succeed in offering the public a season of Opera so varied in character and supported by such an array of talent as cannot fail in eliciting the approbation of his patrons.
The forthcoming season will be marked by two events of more than usual interest, the first being the engagement—concluded at a very considerable expense by Mr. Albites—of the leading artists of the "Havana Opera Company," prominent among whom are a Tenore di Forza of the greatest eminence, from the principal European opera houses, who has created a most remarkable sensation in Havana.
SIGNORA LAURA HIMELA,
Primo Contralto, from La Scala, Milan.
SIGNOR ENRICO CAROSELLI,
a very distinguished Tenore di Grazia.
SIGNORA FREDERICI, Soprano Leggiero.
The second important event will be the re-entree on the lyric stage of the eminent and favorite Prima Donna,
MISS CLARA LOUISA KELLOGG,
who is acknowledged to be the best native artiste.
In addition to the foregoing, arrangements have been effected with MME. AGATHA STATES,
the distinguished Prima Donna, Soprano, and SIGNOR ORLANDINI,
the favorite baritone, who have recently returned from a successful tour in South America. Also SIGNORS REINA and LAURENCE, Baritones.
SIGNORS SUSINI and BACELLI, Bassos.
Signora FONTANESI, Comprimaria, together with a FULL AND COMPLETE CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA.
Conductor..........................Signor NICOLAO
The repertoire will consist of "The Sicilian Vespers," "Rigoletto," "Dinorah," "Il Crispino," "Un Ballo in Maschera," "Roberto le Diable" and "Martha."

SATURDAY—GRAND GALA MATINEE.
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION FOR TEN NIGHTS:
Private boxes (four seats), from $100 to $120; parquet and balcony, $20.

PASSAGE OF BILLS.

To incorporate the Harlem Hospital, in the city of New York to provide for the erection of schoolhouses and a Normal college in the city of New York incorporating the Botanical Club of New York, in relation to insurance companies.

THE SEPARATE ELECTION BILL.

The bill prescribing for separate boxes at elections for Congressmen and members of the Legislature came up and while the yeas and nays were being called on the passage of the bill

Mr ALVORD asked to be excused from voting and said—I believe this is a bill which does not honestly commend itself to the good sense of the rural members of the House It is a bill which will largely enhance the expense, and add very considerably to the confusion of elections It is a bill which will not benefit or advantage any one, but will injure all. I withdraw my request to be excused, and vote no

Mr WEED asked to be excused from voting and said—This bill Mr Speaker, and the action upon it in this House shows how prone our friends in the minority are to try and make political capital on false issues and try and throw upon the majority of this House to come forward to support the measure simply because they think they can make political capital out of it. There is nothing in the bill that can be fairly construed as political in any sense Its provisions are provisions for a free and untrammelled vote of the people upon separate officers, for members of the State to these Legislatures and for Congressmen It is a time honored principle, if is a principle that should never have been departed from—a principle now and always recognized in the election of judicial officers of this State and the continued cry against the character of the members of the Legislature seems to imperatively demand this change in the election of such officers. It gives the people a full and free opportunity to exercise their judgment between the merits and demerits of the different candidates, and no man on the floor or in this State, whether republican or democrat, can claim that this bill or any of its provisions are unjust, or that they will work a hardship to the people of this State it does not increase the cost of elections. What is the trifling cost of a box for a separate ballot? Not, on the contrary it promotes it as it ought to promote, that when an elector comes to cast his ballot for a Representative in Congress for a Senator or a member of Assembly he shall not be trammelled with the rest of the ticket that he shall have the right and every fair play offered him to vote for the best man for each position A surprised that the opponents have not already here an pet deal ground against a bill of such provisions that they, with professions for a free and fair election, for an honest expression of the people at the ballot box, are thus at every opportunity placing their party organization against these efforts to apply to the country does not take effect in the cities of New York and Brooklyn, and where else in this State, through out its length and breadth, has Congress attempted to interfere or claimed that interference was necessary? Hence the cry raised last night that this bill is an attempt to circumvent the action of Congress in reference to election frauds to the ground. It changes in no wise the manner of elections in New York or Brooklyn Where their officers are now voted for upon separate tickets, it simply makes the law throughout the State uniform in these respects and the gentleman from Onondaga and the gentleman from Oswego both in their districts, as well as three-fourths of the people of the State, have now to vote for members of Assembly on separate ballot. This bill, Mr Speaker, does not let down a single safeguard thrown around the ballot box that we have the gentleman and everybody talks about and which safeguards they would place there let me here say, mean restrictions thrown around the ballot to prevent and obstruct the free exercise of the right of suffrage by the poorer classes in this land it deprives no man of his rights. It offers no inducement to fraud or corruption It imposes no encumbrances and places no obstacles in the way of, any voter of the State. For these reasons, and believing it to be a step in the interest of the people of this State, without regard to party, I will draw my request to be excused from voting, and vote aye

The bill was then passed by a strict party vote—65 to 59—Winans voting with the democrats.

THE BUFFALO POLICE BILL

The bill to amend the charter of Buffalo known as the "Buffalo Police Bill," was announced from the Senate with amendments. Mr FEEAR moved that the Senate amendments be concurred in without debate, debate on which question which was carried by a vote of 65 to 58. The bill was then passed by a vote of 65 to 58

WINANS' "WHY (?)"

The Dead-Lock Breaker Speaks—Address to the People of the State—He is Still a Republican.

The following letter has just been issued by Mr Winans in defence of his recent action in the Albany Legislature —

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK —

My actions within the past few days as a member of this Legislature have been the occasion of varied and remarkable comment and accusations of an ungenerous and damning character have been made against me Here at the capital, where the different phases of this occurrence and the causes which produced the unfortunate block in this Legislature are so well understood, it is not necessary to vindicate my position, but some of the newspapers have seen proper to brand me as a traitor to my party and a corruptionist, in fact, all the epithets that human ingenuity can invent have been applied to me The New York Tribune and Times have been especially eager to condemn me before knowing the facts If they will now, in common with other papers, lay before their readers the other side of the question it will be all that I shall ask of them

The unfortunate occurrence of Friday evening, the 7th inst, is still fresh in the mind of every one Excitement ran high, and every member felt deeply the disgrace which had been inflicted upon the dignity and proprieties of the House. An investigating committee was ordered, which entered at once upon its duties. Pending this investigation many were the surmises as to what would be the verdict of the committee. By a resolution of the House all business was suspended on the incoming of its report Many republicans said during the stoppage of legislative proceedings that if the democratic party would expel Irving they would stand in the breach for the remainder of the session and see that the democrats lost nothing by it on party questions. I was one of those who made such expression, and the only one who has had the manliness to keep his pledge. After Mr Irving had ceased to be a member some of the would be leaders of the republican party saw an opportunity for a profitable venture, and under the pretence and cry of regaining party ascendancy they at once held a caucus So hastily was this called that a full republicans were not cognizant of it until it was over The next morning, I think, some written resolutions were handed me at my desk to sign, and, without read ng them, as many often do when busy with other matters, I signed them.

That evening these resolutions of a secret caucus of a portion of the republican members were published in the Albany Evening Journal. Why? As a clincher upon those whom it was supposed might break such unalasgar ce to their names were not published. Had I read these resolutions, and especially the last one containing threats and denouncements, no power on earth would have made me sign them Although satisfied in my own mind, from the anxiety of a few to control and arrange matters, I concluded to watch developments, and quietly myself whether all this parade was really to promote the interest and welfare of the republican party or for the purpose of forcing out Mr Irving Accusations were made that I had come to Albany to thwart such a measure and that certain inducements were to be, and were to consummate that end Such accusations were groundless, and, after the unmasked plans had been baffled and the expectations by which it was hoped to make large sums of money were crushly disappointed In accomplishing this result would have been a sufficient reason for me to take the course I did, but there was another reason

When the "Erie Consolidation" bill was pending in the House many republicans promised to go against it and stand by the rest but when the test came all except one became sheep myself violated their pledges and voted for their express enemies The democrats, almost to a man stood by the road and having been connected with the Erie Railroad for twenty years and spent the best portion of my life in its service, having always been on the most friendly relations with its officers, I must acknowledge I then felt and still feel under obligations to those who thus stood by my road in an emergency

My constituents elected me, knowing full well my connections with that company and that I would stand by it with my influence and my vote The interests of our little town and district are closely allied with the prosperity and welfare of the Erie Railroad

The present officers of that road have been shamefully villified and abused on the floor of the House during this session, but their brilliant management by which the road has become in point of equipment and convenience second to no railroad in the world is refutation of all such charges Those gentlemen are my personal friends, and when I prove false to my real friends "may my right hand forget its cunning, and my tongue cleave to the roof my mouth"

The New York Times has seen proper to connect the name of Senator Fenton with my action But the Times is ready to gratify the hostility of its clique to Senator Fenton by the most dastardly means, catching at every opportunity to injure by the well deserved fame and widen the breach in the republican party

The Tribune, by persistently traducing, holding throughout the State for the past two years and the Times, by its terror ing to precipitate a conflict between what it calls the "Fenton" and the "Conkling" wings have done more to disorganize, disunite and destroy the republican party than all other causes put together

It is not silent in this connection for me to say that I have not seen Senator Fenton in three months, nor that I have not communicated, directly or indirectly, with him on any subject before this Legislature

Personal have been the means of breaking up what I believe to be a combination and conspiracy among a few men in my party to take advantage of a constitutional difficulty, in the want of a legal majority for the purpose of private gain I am set up for the target of scorn and am to be degraded if they can influence public opinion

To the people of this State I solemnly declare that my whole object in consists in unblocking the wheels of legislation allowing business to proceed, and saving the State hundreds of thousands of dollars by preventing the necessity of an extra session

Although those whose sinister schemes I have thwarted attempt to read me out of the republican party, I am still a republican and have the proud satisfaction of knowing that I have done the State a great service, rendered an act of justice to the democratic party and satisfied my own conscience Those who accuse me of bribery and corruption in this matter are base slanderers and liars and I challenge them to a scrutiny of my antecedents and present position

The history of my whole life is a refutation of this charge, and those who have known me where I have lived will reject the base insinuation

Will this statement I shall for the present rest my case with the people ORANGE S WINANS

The Gladstone Budget Presented to Parliament.

Financial Condition of the United Kingdom—How the Franco-Prussian War Deranged the Bases of Calculation—The Revenue in Excess of the Estimates—Cost of the Army—A Ray of Light from the Tax System of America

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD

LONDON, April 20, 1871.

The Right Honorable Mr. Lowe, Chancellor of the Exchequer, submitted the Gladstone government budget to the House of Commons this evening, his statement occupying the attention of members until a late hour of the night.

Although it was known that the Chancellor would make the financial exhibit the Parliamentary attendance was not numerous.

After the Speaker had taken the chair Mr. Lowe addressed the House, prefacing the introductory to the budget, and setting forth his figures, facts and Treasury projects He referred to the "stupendous events which had transpired in Europe since the last financial statement was presented—events of a character and magnitude to set at naught all estimates of trade and revenue Nevertheless the resources of the United kingdom had shown the greatest elasticity. The revenue was two and a third millions of pounds sterling in excess of the estimates, and the expenditures fell half a million below the estimates While the cost of the army was half a million more than had been calculated, that of the civil service was nearly a million less"

Mr. Lowe proceeded to give in detail the plans of the government for further economies One of the most important was the placing of the Chancery funds in the hands of the government for conversion into stock

The estimated expenses of the army, including those incurred by the abolition of the purchase system, are £16,590,060, and for the navy £9,750,000. The estimates for the civil service show an increase of £125,000 over those of last year in consequence of educational measures.

The revenue from Customs for the ensuing financial year is estimated at less than that of last year The total receipts from all sources, it is expected, will not exceed in round figures, £69,000,000, while the total expenditures may reach £72,000,000. The deficiency is set down at £2,700,000

The Chancellor said that "the fact that England could not be invaded secured her credit and insured her commerce."

He defended the recent reductions in taxation on the ground that "they were made when war was not expected" He proposed to restore taxes on dividends belonging to foreigners abroad, to abolish other exemptions from taxation and to impose further duties on legacies and successions proportioned to the amount thereof

He next proposed what he termed a resort of American origin, viz —a tax on lucifer matches This proposition was received with great laughter by the House

The main points of the Exchequer statement go to show that the total government receipts for the financial year were £60,911,893 as compared with £60,627 608 last year. The revenue was composed of the following —Customs, £18,214,000, Excise, £19 601,000, Stamps, £8 081,000, taxes, £2,333,600, income tax, £5,267,000; Post Office, £3,730 000, telegraph service, £680,000, Crown lands £365,000, miscellaneous, £2,810,693. The payments amount to £64,505,481.

The Board of Trade returns for twelve months, ended 31st December last year, are set forth —The total declared value of the exports for the month of December, 1870, was £17,178,068, against £15,994,975 in 1869, and £14,638,990 in 1868. For the twelve months ended December 21 the figures stand at £199,640 953, against £189,935,957 in 1869, and £179,677 812 in 1868. During the twelve months the principal increase was in coals and culm, cotton manufactures, earthenware and porcelain, haberdashery, machinery, unwrought iron and steel, silk manufactures and woollen and worsted manufactures In the foreign trade the shipping tonnage employed was 14,911,876, against 14,485,945 in the corresponding period of 1869, and 13,851,317 in 1868 for the entries inward, for the clearances outward there were 16,714,668 tons against 15,919,887 tons in 1869, and 15 474,892 tons in 1868. In the coasting trade during the same period the figures show that the tonnage employed was 18,266,626, against 18,001,982 in 1869, and 17,701,999 in 1868.

WHITEHOUSE LI April 20—7 PM

In consequence of the dense fog prevailing throughout Long Island Sound during the early part of the day and its partial continuation up to the present time as well as the total absence of a breeze comparatively few sailing vessels, either westward or eastward bound, passed While strong winds of the Sound and river steamers were also somewhat delayed on account of the density of the fog. Accounts from several of the ports above state a number of vessels are being detained off their coasts.

Shipping Notes.

Pier No 1 East river is being repaired

The Inman Steamship Company have chartered the steamer Nemesis, and will hereafter run two vessels a week from both New York and Liverpool in order to compete with other lines, which are running two steamers weekly The company have recently sold the steamers City of Cork and City of Manchester to a London firm, to be employed in the Mediterranean

There arrived at this port on Wednesday last three ships from Calcutta, namely, Glenesk, Linco n, and Edith Warren, which sailed within three hours of each other This is remarkable from the fact that one was not seen during the whole time after leaving port, and the other two saw each other but once. The distance sailed is about 13,000 miles.

Congress has recently appropriated $.00 000 for the purpose of refitting the life stations on the Long Island and New Jersey coasts This is a matter which has long needed attending to It is to be hoped that it will be carried out at once

According to an official statement published by the Suez Canal Company the actual receipts for 1870 amount to 6 337,204 francs, or £265,468, or to only about one fourth of M de Lesseps's estimate, and even this amount includes considerable sums realized by the sale of stock, &c, no longer required for the construction of the Canal The income would doubtless have been much larger had not the British Lloyds refused to insure sailing vessels traversing the Red Sea. The English have been the principal patrons of the Canal and they have, as a consequence, reaped so far the greater portion of the resulting advantages, but the other leading nations of Europe are beginning to show an increasing disposition to emulate the example of the English shipping merchants The shipping List, in referring to the important achievements of this avenue of communication, says —

We observe by our late European files that a new Russian steamship company has been organized for the establishment of direct trade between China and Odessa, via the Suez Canal. The pioneers of the line—the Tchihatcheff and Bachimoff—two iron screw steamers, are to load at Hankow for Odessa in June next. The steamers are owned by the Russian Steam Navigation and Trading Co" a rich and powerful corporation, enjoying a large yearly subsidy from the Russian government. These two steamers, which together will carry about four million pounds of tea, have been promised full return freights to Odessa by the Moscow merchants engaged in the tea trade, at £6 per ton of 40 cubic feet. There are said to be seventy Russian firms some of them very wealthy, engaged in the tea trade with the annual consumption in Europe and Russia is estimated at 50,000 000 pounds so that there would seem to be nothing chimerical about the enterprise

There were in the harbor of New York, Thursday, April 20, 490 vessels, of which 74 were steamships, 51 ships, 96 barks, 90 brigs and 177 schooners
